

'Her Mother Was Told Car Killed Susan'

By JIM HUME

Something this week somebody has to tell Susan Freschi's mother how her daughter died. Locked in grief in a shaded room at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, Mrs. R. J. Freschi thinks Susan was killed by a car.

"We can't tell her how Susan died," Mrs. Earnshaw said this morning, tears staining her care-lined face. "She loved Susan so much her heart is breaking. Whatever we do we must keep from her the horrible way she died."

Quietly spoken, Mrs. Earnshaw is fighting a strong feeling of guilt that Susan's murder on Tuesday evening was her fault.

"For the first time in many, many months I went to town to see a movie. I shouldn't have gone, you know. I should have met Susan the way I always did when she took her riding lessons."

Sunlight dappled the green lawn beneath a weeping willow tree and the breeze rippled the water of a small ornamental pool in front of the Earnshaw home.

Mrs. Earnshaw looked across to the woods where her niece's body was found Wednesday.

"I know it's silly, but I blame myself. I wanted to see 'Seance on a Wet Afternoon,' so when Susan telephoned a little after 6 to tell me she would be late I told her I was going to the show and to go ahead and walk home."

Susan could have caught an earlier bus, but Tuesday evening volunteered to stay behind and clean the stables at the Victoria Riding Academy.

"She was like that," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Always helpful, always willing and so sensitive to the problems of other people. She was only 14 but, along with my daughter Felicity, she took a great interest in the civil rights struggle in the United States. They knew every one of Pete Seeger's songs by heart. She used to sing 'We Shall Overcome.'"

Felicity was 15 a week ago. We had a few girls from St. Ann's Academy out and they slept outside here on the lawn. It was a wonderful time and Susan enjoyed herself so much that day.

"She wasn't a Catholic, you know. Neither are we. But St. Ann's is such a good school and the sisters set such a fine example."

"I served them a chicken dinner just after midnight as a special treat that night. It was such a lovely time and it was only a week ago ..."

Mrs. Earnshaw said she knew when she returned from the movies on Tuesday night that something was sadly wrong.

"I was home shortly after 9 o'clock and I know something was wrong when Susan wasn't home. I met all the buses after that. All of them until we found out that Susan had been on an early bus."

Susan left the B.C. Hydro bus at Helmcken on the Old Island Highway at 7:50 p.m. to start the long, never-to-be-completed two-mile walk home.

She was killed less than 500 yards from the neat white house that had been her home since coming to Canada a year ago from southern California.

"She came to stay with me so that she could attend St. Ann's," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Her mother and father couldn't bear to lose her, but wanted her to broaden her experience. This is such a terrible time for them, for all of us, now. We keep looking back and thinking how different things could have been."

"Felicity keeps saying 'if only I hadn't said that or done this.' We all do. But it's too late now. She was such a beautiful child, such a wonderful girl."

Mrs. Earnshaw fell silent. The wind rustled the trees, the birds sang.

"Please tell people not to send flowers," she asked. "Tell them instead to send money to the Civil Rights Association. Susan would have wanted that."

"If only I hadn't been selfish and gone to the movies ..."

ONE MILLION HOMELESS IN PAKISTAN CYCLONE

DACCA, Pakistan (UPI)—Authorities said today the massive cyclone which struck a 20,000-square-mile area of Pakistan early Wednesday left more than one million persons homeless and may have caused thousands of deaths.

The hardest hit area was the delta region of Barisal district, 150 miles south of Dacca. Eight other districts felt the full force of the more than 100-mile-an-hour winds for more than nine hours.

More than 100,000 dwellings collapsed and communications were disrupted over a wide area.

WARNING BY LBJ

'All of Asia' China's Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today the aim of China "is to erode and discredit" the ability of the U.S. to help to prevent Chinese domination over all Asia, but "in this they shall never succeed."

Johnson threw down the gauntlet to the Chinese in a television-radio address on American efforts in Viet Nam. The president prepared his talk for a meeting with editorial cartoonists in the East Room of the White House.

Repeating his offer to engage in unconditional discussions designed to end the Viet Nam war, Johnson said this would "clearly be in the interest of North Viet Nam."

But he said "Communist China apparently desires the war to continue whatever the cost to their allies." He went on:

"Their target is not merely South Viet Nam. It is Asia. Their objective is not the fulfillment of Vietnamese nationalism. It is to erode and discredit America's ability to prevent Chinese domination over all of Asia."

"In this they shall never succeed."

Killer Must Know Area

By DESMOND BILL

RCMP suspect a local man must be responsible for the sex-slaying of a 14-year-old girl in the Parson's Bridge area Tuesday night because of the circumstances under which she was killed.

The nude body of Susan Freschi, daughter of wealthy American parents, was found in thick bush country behind the Six-Mile House beer parlor Wednesday afternoon.

Her body was found in one of the few clearings in the tangled undergrowth. The area is criss-crossed with trails, but the death spot is away from all of them.

Police said the killer certainly had a good knowledge of the local area.

They said he may have been known to the girl.

She was found with her head lying in a pool of blood. Police said she apparently was bashed to death with a large rock weighing one and one-half pounds.

Her hands were tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of rope.

An autopsy was being held today to determine if the girl was sexually assaulted.

Police are checking all known sex-offenders in this area to discover their movements Tuesday night.

Killer May Have Stalked Susan

Susan may have been stalked by her killer from the time she got off a B.C. Hydro bus at the end of the terminus at Helmcken and Old Island Highway at 7:50 Tuesday night.

Police said she started off down the Old Island Highway to walk the two miles to where she lived with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, 2637 Chilco Road.

She was seen shortly after 8 p.m. at Thetis Lake Underpass walking alone carrying her school books.

Police say that from that point she could have taken two routes. She could have walked down Atkins Road to Chilco or could have walked along the Old Island Highway to the Six Mile House and then taken a shortcut along a trail through wooded country to Chilco.

Police said that in the past she has taken both routes on her way home. Usually she was picked up at the bus terminus by her aunt but Tuesday night her aunt was going out to the movies and Susan telephoned Mrs. Earnshaw to say she would walk home.

The spot where her body was found is about 200 yards up a hill in thick bush away from the shortcut. The spot is about 10 yards from the top of a railway embankment and on the other side of the tracks there is a steep slope up to Atkins Road.

Mrs. Earnshaw arrived home shortly after 9 and discovered Susan had still not got home.

She went to the bus stop and waited for each bus as it arrived looking for the girl.

She contacted Colwood RCMP near midnight. Police made several checks overnight and at 6 Wednesday morning began to search for Susan.

An RCMP tracking dog from Nanaimo was brought in to search and local people joined in to help. Police said the body was found by a "young lad" but said they did not have his name.

Police said the best clue they have in the case is the rope used to tie Susan's hands. They said it is an "ordinary rope" such as is used for tying up a small boat.

The murder weapon was found by the tracking dog. It is a dirty blood-smeared rock about two times the size of a man's clenched fist.

Susan's underclothes and her outer garments were found a few feet from her body. They were not torn, police said.

Susan was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Freschi of La Calada, a suburb of Glendale outside Los Angeles. She came to live with her aunt and her cousin, Felicity Earnshaw, last fall.

Susan attended St. Ann's Academy along with Felicity Earnshaw, her cousin. The girls were good friends and their friendship was one of the reasons she came to live in Canada. The dead girl was popular at St. Ann's.

DISPUTE ERUPTS OVER VIET NAM VIGIL

'Church People' Rapped by U.S. Official

WASHINGTON (AP)—A religious-led "silent vigil" protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam broke up late Wednesday in a rain-drenched row between a spokesman for the group and Assistant Defence Secretary Arthur Sylvester.

The row was over whether the spokesman, Edward Snyder of the Friends Committee, violated a confidence in giving a public report of a session between Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and nine leaders of the interfaith demonstration.

Sylvester accused Snyder of giving a "one-sided, slanted report" and said "only church people would do what you are doing."

Snyder had said McNamara told the delegation the U.S. is "not preparing to attack Communist China unless they attack the United States."

He quoted McNamara as saying there would be little to gain in knocking out China's atomic complex because "they would be right back in five years."

He quoted McNamara as supporting the idea of economic aid to Southeast Asia and supporting the idea of negotiation.

Sylvester accused Snyder and his group of "going back on your word" to treat the details as confidential.

The cobalt was owned by the federal government and stored under the contract by the Deloro Mining and Reduction Co. Ltd.

Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Wednesday that the company was responsible for the cobalt, used in steel hardening and in production of certain paints.

It had been stockpiled since 1958. The theft was discovered more than a week ago, but word did not leak out until Monday.

The cobalt, in pelletized form, was stored in 268 barrels, of which only 23 remained untouched, police said.

Investigating officers believe heavy lifting equipment and transport trucks or rail transportation were used to haul the cobalt away from the site.

A CNR spur line between the smelter and Madoc, Ont., about five miles away, and a winding 1½-mile chipped-rock road leading to Highway 7 are the only probable transport routes, police said.

TRUCKS, RAIL CARS USED IN THEFT

Cobalt Stolen; Barrels Contain Sand

DELORO, Ont. (CP)—Police and department of defence production officials are investigating the theft from a warehouse of $650,000 worth of refined cobalt.

The cobalt was owned by the federal government and stored under the contract by the Deloro Mining and Reduction Co. Ltd.

Industry Minister Drury told the Commons Wednesday that the company was responsible for the cobalt, used in steel hardening and in production of certain paints.

It had been stockpiled since 1958. The theft was discovered more than a week ago, but word did not leak out until Monday.

A CNR spur line between the smelter and Madoc, Ont., about five miles away, and a winding 1½-mile chipped-rock road leading to Highway 7 are the only probable transport routes, police said.

"You don't exactly throw those barrels around," said Insp. Floyd Shanks of the Madoc provincial police. "It took two of us just to tip a barrel, let alone move it anywhere."

Some of the drums weighed up to 2,000 pounds, he said. Four men with crowbars could not even roll one.

The cobalt had been removed from the barrels and replaced in most instances with sand or gravel.

The warehouse showed no signs of forced entry, police said. The remaining barrels were trucked out of the warehouse Tuesday to an undisclosed destination.

Deloro is 30 miles north of Belleville.

BLOOD-SOAKED SECT MARCH IN STREETS

KARACHI (UPI)—Ten thousand blood-soaked flagellants of the Shia Moslem sect marched through the streets of Karachi today to mark the slaying of the Caliph Imam Hussain in the Iraqi desert 13 centuries ago. The flagellation is intended to symbolize the agony and violence Hussain suffered when he was killed in 640.

The march ended a 10-day Moslem festival which celebrates the beginning of Muharram, the first month of the Moslem calendar.

THIS IS THE HOME where Susan Freschi, victim of a brutal murder Tuesday evening, lived with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, 2637 Chilco Road.

The home is less than one-half mile from where the bludgeoned body of the 14-year-old girl was found.

SIMILARITY OF CRIMES

'Travel Either Route ... To Scene of Murder'

By PETE LOUDON

There's a CNR spur line running north from Point Ellice Bridge, across Selkirk Water, paralleling Douglas Street almost to the base of Carey Road.

There it splits, one track running east and one track running west.

You can take either route to the scene of murder.

One murder took place Tuesday. One took place 22 years ago.

But both murders are similar in that the victims were young girls on their way home, alone and afoot.

Both were thought to have been attacked while taking shortcuts through deserted bush areas.

In both cases, the last persons known to have seen them alive were the bus drivers who brought them from town.

In both cases, the bodies were found close to the old railway tracks, freight-feeder lines which seem to lead to nowhere.

Tuesday's tragedy burns brightly in the minds of an anguished community. But how many remember the horror that swept Victoria with the death of Anita Margaret Justice, killed and robbed in her 16th year?

Known to most as Molly Justice, her surname has become an irony—because her killer never has been found, never has paid the bill—and may still be prowling the bushes starting railway tracks.

Molly Justice, though only 15, was head seamstress at a Victoria shop January 18, 1943—one of the war years when even children held good jobs in the all-out war effort.

She was staying with friends in Saanich and she got off her bus that night at Carey Road and University, walked down University to Douglas, along Vernon and down an embankment to the CNR track.

Her body, stabbed repeatedly, was found near Darwin Road, beside the track, so near that at first it was thought she had been hit by a train.

Her purse and a ring were missing but a new fall of snow complicated a search for these items and other clues.

The area was sealed off and a 60-acre probe began. But a week later the snow still hampered the investigation. Police tried melting it with hot water, but gave this up fearing they would destroy some remnant of evidence.

Vancouver criminologist J. F. C. Vance was brought over. Hospitals were asked to report any patient with scratches because human hair had been found under Molly's nails.

Laundries were checked for blood-stained clothes. A man's glove was found in the area and police checked the owners of 81 pair of gloves sold in the same batch, before giving up this task.

A lighter bearing the initials "RL" was found and with it Molly's purse. A youth and a 50-year-old logger were questioned and released.

The trail led nowhere. Molly's killer still lives with his secret—or has taken it to his grave.

The case even had international aspects. Mayor Andrew McGavin protested that Victoria's street dim-out could have been a factor in Molly's death and several molestings.

It had been requested by U.S. authorities, he complained. Yet lights were burning bright in several coastal points in the U.S.

Molly's death is marked each year here by one friend, Mrs. Tom Green of Parksville, who places an advertisement in this newspaper each January in Molly's memory.

"Gone, but never forgotten," it reads.

Minister Caught Cold In Lapse of Security

LONDON (AP) — Housing Minister Richard Crossman dined in a London restaurant Tuesday night 36 hours after the Labor government ordered a tightening of security. He left a set of confidential government papers under the table.

The papers were spotted by a Conservative, company director Geoffrey Blundell-Brown, 45, who turned them over to Scotland Yard and then told reporters.

Blundell-Brown said he saw Crossman working on papers during his meal.

After Crossman left, Blundell-Brown found four groups of papers, 18 sheets in all, on the floor beneath the minister's table.

He said they were marked confidential, which is the lowest of four grades of official information protected by the Official Secrets Act.

They dealt with the government's race relations bill and included a summary of a cabinet meeting on housing for colored immigrants, he said.

"It is monstrous that the day after the prime minister criticizes the previous government for security lapses, one of his senior ministers should leave cabinet documents in a public place," Blundell-Brown said.

Government aides said Crossman had confirmed that the papers were his—and added he was obliged to Blundell-Brown for returning them promptly.

Worker Hurt As Parking Tier Falls

A construction worker this morning received a badly bruised shoulder when a section of the Hudson's Bay Co. parkade collapsed underneath him.

David Hansen, 3188 Shelbourne, was reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital. No bones were broken as a result of the mishap.

Hansen and seven other men were pouring cement on a 30 by 15-foot section of the car park's third tier when it gave way.

The men and two cement buggies rode the section down to the second level 14-feet below.

Two other men received facial cuts but were not admitted to hospital.

Consulting engineer Stan Jantzen was standing on the second floor and men, cement and steel reinforcing rods tumbled to his feet.

He said it appeared Hansen was struck by a cement buggy. "Somebody could have been killed. We were lucky," he added.

The section, which abuts the existing department store building, was weighted down with 18 yards of cement plus the reinforcing rods.

Workmen immediately began to scoop up the cement from the second floor after the accident before it began to set.

First Aid Man Issue Debated By Firm, Union

Management and union officials were meeting at 2 p.m. today in an effort to settle a dispute which closed B.C. Forest Products Sunday night until Tuesday.

The short-lived wildcat strike which saw 800 men idled involves the hiring of a full-time first aid man for the mill's graveyard shift.

Management claims that a full-time first aid man working in the nearby plywood mill and a fully trained first aid attendant in the planer mill fill Workmen's Compensation Act requirements.

The IWA claims that a full-time first aid man is required in the sawmill division of the mill.

Herbert Barnes, manager of the sawmill division, said talks between a three-man management committee and a seven-man plant committee resumed this afternoon in an endeavor to resolve the problem.

Inquest Scheduled Into Boy's Death

An inquest will begin tonight at 7:30 at Sands' Chapel into the death of Michael George, 7, of 1375 Craigflower Rd.

The youngster was found Sunday in an open septic tank excavation near his home. The hole held three feet of water.

school, surprisingly so for someone who was a newcomer, said Sister Dorothy Marie, one of her teachers.

She was an enthusiastic swimmer and usually went for swimming lessons on Tuesday after noon after school.

However, she changed her usual routine this week because she was entered in a horse riding competition May 24 and wanted to get in additional practice.

After school, Tuesday, she went to Victoria Riding Academy on Cedar Hill Cross Road. Mrs. D. B. Carley, who operates the riding school, said Susan left there about 7 p.m. after practice.

Mrs. Carley described Susan as a "nice girl, full of fun. She was very level-headed. All she thought about was school and horses. She was not interested in boys."

Susan got on a No. 15 bus near the riding school and rode straight through on it to Helmcke where she got off. The driver of the bus, William Savage, 2638 Deville, said she sat across from him on the bus.

ONLY PERSON

He said, "I noticed her because she was practically the only person on the bus. She had an armful of books and I remarked to her that it was kind of late for her to be getting home from school."

"She told me that she had been out riding. I said she looked like she had lots of homework to do and she said she would have to get up early in the morning and do it."

"When we got to the terminus she said 'goodnight.' She walked off down the road on her own. I didn't notice anyone about."

Mr. Savage said that he continued on his run and that when he got back to the terminus again shortly before 11 Mrs. Earnshaw came up to the bus and asked him if he had seen a girl answering Susan's description. He said he advised Mrs. Earnshaw then to call police.

Police said it was still light when she left the terminus to walk home.

Her fellow students at St. Ann's Academy prayed for her in the school chapel Wednesday when it became known that she was missing.

The entire school body gathered this morning to pray for the repose of her soul. Sister Dorothy Marie said many of the girls were weeping in the assembly.

A special Mass was offered for her soul at noon today at St. Andrew's Cathedral and it was attended by her fellow students.

Truck Raider Gets $200 Cash

Approximately $200 in cash and $200 in credit card vouchers were stolen Wednesday night from a service station employee's truck.

David Bleasdale of Royalite service station, 1703 Douglas, said he parked the truck for half an hour and the theft took place during that period.

He told police he put cash and vouchers in an envelope under a front seat blanket.

girl. Everyone seemed to be her friend."

Sister said Susan was class president in Grade 8 and had been nominated by her classmates for a good citizenship award.

She said these are unusual honors for a new girl but Susan was given them because of her friendliness.

LAND DEVELOPER

Susan's father is a prominent land developer and realtor who is part-owner of La Calada Golf and Country Club outside Glendale.

He has lived in the Los Angeles area for 20 years and been active in Democratic in Glendale. Susan is survived by an 11-year-old brother, Sandy, as well as her parents. Her parents arrived in Victoria late Wednesday.

An inquest will be opened tonight at Sands Mortuary at Colwood Corners. It is expected to be adjourned after medical evidence is given.

Dominican Rebels Talk Of Settlement

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — A spokesman for the Dominican rebels indicated Wednesday that a settlement with the rival military-civilian junta may be near. But he held out for dismissal of some leading military men backing the junta.

"There's every reason to hope we are near a settlement," said rebel "foreign minister" Jottin Cury. He spoke after a conference between Col. Francisco Caamaño Dero, the rebel leader, and two members of the peace commission of the Organization of American States, Ricardo C. Colombo of Argentina and Carlos Garcia Bauer of Guatemala.

Cury added that a peaceful solution depends on the dismissal of some key officers backing the junta.

Six of eight high-ranking officers removed by the junta in a peace move arrived in Puerto Rico aboard a Dominican Navy frigate. But Caamaño said previously their dismissal was not enough to satisfy him.

Latin American diplomatic circles in Washington reported a broadly based interim government embracing both government and rebel leaders may be in sight. But Cury, speaking to reporters, ruled out a coalition government.

NO COALITION

He said "our objective is the restoration of the constitution," and that acceptance of a coalition "with elements from the other side would be a repudiation of constitutional objectives for which we have fought."

Cury said the junta has no legality or popular support "except that extended by the U.S. military."

Meanwhile, a rebel spokesman said today seven loyalist troops and one rebel soldier were killed Wednesday night in one of two clashes. A U.S. marine was killed by rebel snipers in another action.

Dominican Youth Shot; Soldiers Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department said Wednesday a U.S. army paratrooper fatally shot a Dominican youth in Santo Domingo Tuesday night after accusing the youth of poisoning him.

The Pentagon said three soldiers of the 82nd Airborne Division were taken into custody and an investigation is under way. "Those involved will be disciplined as the facts warrant," the defence department said.

The department said the three unidentified soldiers went into a drug store with the youth, Oscar Alido Perez, 17.

"In the drug store, one enlisted man fell asleep," the statement said. "One asked for an alkali seltzer, and accused Perez of poisoning him."

"In an altercation that followed, Perez was fatally shot."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Sunny skies will be present in most regions of B.C. Friday as a ridge of high pressure builds across the province. In the south a weak weather disturbance will cross the Oregon coast this evening. The edge of the cloud shield associated with it will reach extreme southern B.C., but rain will not spread into the province.

OPPOSITION CHARGES:

'Key Spy Allowed To Leave Canada'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Did the Canadian government allow a key secret Soviet agent to slip out of the hands of its counter-espionage operators, when the spy could have been prosecuted because he did not enjoy diplomatic immunity?

That question was raised in the Commons Wednesday by the opposition. They were referring to V. N. Poluchkin, employed in the Russian embassy as a chancery clerk. That was his "cover," but it cloaked his real activities which were to organize an economic and industrial espionage network in Canada, with tentacles reaching into the United States.

The other Russian expelled by Canada was the commercial attache, A. E. Bychkov. Both had been declared "persona non grata" and ordered out of Canada. Mr. Bychkov was on the diplomatic list and as such enjoyed diplomatic immunity.

OFFER REJECTED

Prime Minister Pearson offered in the Commons Wednesday to meet with leaders of the opposition parties and give them confidential information about the latest Russian spy case. But Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker, rejected the prime minister's offer.

Mr. Diefenbaker declared that he did not think the prime minister had the right to make an offer to take the leaders of the opposition groups into his confidence in such a matter. He said the prime minister could only transmit secret information to those who are members of the privy council.

Mr. Pearson said he did not accept Mr. Diefenbaker's interpretation of the prime minister's rights.

Students Convicted

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Nine persons arrested in the March obscenity demonstrations at the University of California Berkeley campus have been convicted of various charges for using a four-letter sex word. Municipal court Judge Floyd C. Talbot Tuesday found the nine guilty of violations ranging from disturbing the peace to distributing or voicing the word. He scheduled sentencing for June 8.

Favreau told T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party that he would seek to ascertain the exact time and date when the "loyal" Canadian gave information to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He said he would also have to consider whether or not it would be proper for him to communicate such information to the House.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) raised the question as to the status of the two Soviet espionage agents who have been expelled. He said he understood one did not have diplomatic immunity according to the Russian embassy list, and he demanded to know why that man had not been charged in Canada instead of being allowed to leave the country?

'OFFICIAL STATUS'

Mr. Pearson said it was true that one of the Soviet officials (Poluchkin) did not have diplomatic status. However he had "official status," said Mr. Pearson. For that reason he was given the same treatment in this regard as members of the Canadian embassy in Moscow are given whether or not they are diplomatic officers.

FIRST NEGRO admitted to University of Mississippi, James Meredith announced Wednesday he is abandoning his doctorate studies at Ibadan University to return to U.S. Meredith was awarded political science fellowship by Nigerian government last year. He said he is returning to U.S. to study law.

S.A. Switches Coins

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africa began Wednesday the big job of changing its coinage to bring it into conformity with the switch to decimal currency four years ago. Introduction of new five-cent nickel pieces and two-cent copper pieces at banks began the process, which the government hopes will be completed during the next 18 months.

Arabs Angered By Bonn Move

BONN (UPI)—West Germany and Israel established diplomatic relations today just 20 years after the collapse of the Nazi regime and its campaign to destroy the world's Jews. The decision angered Arab nations, which began breaking their own relations with Bonn.

Iraq and Jordan did not wait for today's official announcement but broke relations on Wednesday. Syria was the first to follow today. At least 8 of the 12 other members of the Arab League made it known they plan similar action.

The United Arab Republic, which led the Arab fight against West German recognition of Israel also severed diplomatic relations. There were reports Egypt would recognize Communist East Germany in further retaliation.

The decision was announced simultaneously in Bonn and Jerusalem with publication of a joint communique and the texts of letters exchanged by German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1965

At its regular monthly meeting last Tuesday, the Board of Directors of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria took note of the welcome public discussion currently occupying space in The Times, and resolved unanimously to record its full support of the operational policies now being carried out by Mr. Colin Graham, director of the Gallery. The Board is in complete accord with the program of seeking to achieve some degree of eminence for the city in one of the few major fields still open, that is, Oriental art, while continuing to maintain a well-rounded plan of exhibiting local, Canadian, European and other material and acquiring it for the permanent collection whenever possible.—B. A. Tobin, President, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Question of 'Jewish Guilt' Still Not Settled by Church

ROME—Strenuous attempts are being made behind the scenes in the Vatican to swing the Roman Catholic Church away from its decision at the council session last October, which exonerated the Jews from all responsibility for the Crucifixion.

Then 85 per cent of the assembled bishops and archbishops supported a declaration which removed the charge of deicide—the killing of Christ—levelled at Jews down the centuries. The council opposed all forms of persecution and anti-Semitism. Its declaration called, not for the conversion of Jews to Christianity, but for mutual respect between the two religions.

It was a notably liberal document. Much of the credit rested with 82-year-old Cardinal Bea, the subtle and determined German Jesuit, and with his Secretariat for Christian Unity. But the victory was not achieved without a bitter battle. Now the struggle is on again.

Arab Pressure

The attempt to doctor the declaration is being made on both political and doctrinal grounds. Arab governments and leaders of the 3,500,000 Catholics in the Middle East have applied pressure.

Their efforts have received strong support from the highest Vatican quarters. The crucial phase is now opening. It will end by mid-June, when the agenda and arrangements for the fourth and final session of the council must be completed.

On strict instructions from the Vatican a pall of silence, more all-enveloping even than that which now surrounds the birth control pill, has descended on the Jewish declaration and on that on religious liberty. But news has leaked out of the appointment of a private four-man commission, set up to review and revise the document approved by the council.

The chairman is an arch-conservative, Bishop Carli of Segni. Other members include Pope Paul's successor as Archbishop of Milan, Cardinal Colombo, and two priests stationed in Rome. Guiding lines laid down to direct the commission made it clear that the members are to be bound by the Gospel narrative.

Decide Charge

According to the conservative interpretation, this declares that the persecution of Christ was planned by the leaders of the Jews; and that the Apostles themselves taught that the Jewish people were responsible for Christ's death. More important, the refutation of the charge of deicide, which was in the text before the council, was to be omitted by the commission. The latter was given to understand that the Pope would be guided by a majority verdict.

At the final meeting last month, a 3-1 majority came out against the declaration on the two crucial issues of deicide and conversion.

Cardinal Colombo stood out alone for the original declaration. Although the term deicide was not mentioned, the draft suggested by the majority stated that the Jewish people had resisted the claims of the Messiah and that their resistance had led to his Crucifixion at their leaders' hands. On conversion, the report specifically summoned Jews as well as all men to look for God in his church.

Confronted with a split commission, the Pope asked that some unanimous statement be reached. A number of agreed statements were drawn up by all four members. Where they were not ambiguous, the statements tilted towards the majority. The Jews were absolved from guilt before and after, but not (so it was implied) at the time of the Crucifixion. It was understood that Cardinal Bea's secretariat, when it came to draw up a new text to put before the council, would take the majority report into consideration.

Most Dramatic

This latest chapter in a long, tangled story, one of the most dramatic episodes in the fascinating, unfinished attempt to modernize the church, traces back to Pope John XXIII. In 1961, addressing a Jewish delegation from the United

POPE PAUL seeks unanimity

States, he said: "I feel today, and I say to you, I am your brother."

Two years later, between the first and second council sessions, the secretariat prepared a liberal document. But the fireworks only began in earnest at the third session last autumn. The council was confronted with a much-watered-down version of Cardinal Bea's original draft; the revision was widely and openly attributed to the key 11-man co-ordinating commission of the council. Even so Arab statesmen, notably the Syrian prime minister, attempted to browbeat the council into dropping the whole idea of a declaration—or else facing the antagonism of the whole non-aligned world.

Stirring Debate

In a famous, stirring two-day debate in St. Peter's last September the fathers called overwhelmingly for the watered-down version to be stiffened and restored to all its former liberalism. Three American Cardinals—Meyer, Ritter and Cushing, were prominent among the liberals. So were Cardinal Frings of Cologne (who like his German colleagues feels a moral duty to atone, at least theologically, for past sins against the Jews).

Faced with this open clash, Pope Paul moved in. He held discussions with Cardinal Cl-cognani, the Vatican's foreign minister and a notable conservative in his own right. Whether as a direct result of these talks or not, Clcognani wrote to Cardinal Bea suggesting that the Jewish declaration be broken up into separate parts, both to lessen its political effect and weaken its impact.

To combat this move and, even more, to force the presentation of the declaration on religious liberty before the council, a dozen or so of the most active progressive cardinals, mostly from the western world, met in the Roman Hospice where Cardinal Frings was lodging to concert their strategy.

It was Frings, although he is almost blind, whom the Pope summoned to discuss the possibility of compromise. But the whole lot of them wrote to Archbishop Felici, the secretary-general of the council, protesting the right of majority to have its way. Their action, cunningly devised to force the Pope's hand without challenging his authority, was successful. The draft declaration was given an overwhelming vote of confidence.

Same Pressures

Although the decree had to undergo its final drafting at the hands of the co-ordinating commission, there was some reason to think, if only because of the size of the majority, that the controversy was over. It wasn't. No sooner had the fathers packed their bags than the same pressures and the same counter-maneuvres, started up again.

Orthodox patriarchs made implacable statements, Ignatius Yacoub III, the Syrian Patriarch of Antioch, said on December 5 that "the creed of the church regarding the Crucifixion of Christ is that responsibility for it lies with the Jewish people until the world ends. The Bible, which recorded this creed, was not written for one generation, but for all generations."

Final resolutions for presenting a new draft to this year's council session rests with the same 11-man co-ordinating commission which in 1964 used its influence to water down the Jewish declaration.

A Question

More than one patriarch has been given to understand—and is content to know it—that there is now a question of whether the document is in its final form. The explanation lies in the four-man commission headed by the conservative Bishop Carli appointed to review and revise the document. It began its secret task in February, and while it was considering its brief, Carli published an article which said the Jewish people were responsible for the crime of deicide.

Silence is still the watchword in Rome. Both progressives and conservatives are playing for time.

There are fears that, by some ruse, the co-ordinating commission under Clcognani may prevent the matter coming before the council again this year. But there is still time for the liberal forces to be rallied. Much will depend on the steadfastness of the bishops who voted so overwhelmingly last autumn. Since then, Cardinal Meyer has died and Cardinal Cushing has fallen ill. But there are others ready to take their place. (London Observer Service)

Rann of Kutch Fight Was a Boring Affair

By CYRIL DUNN

RANN OF KUTCH—Such trees as there are within the vast limits of the Rann of Kutch are stunted and seem to have thin green plastic tubes as foliage. They grow only on the beds, or islands, which stand at this dry season of the year in a huge flat lunar sea of dust and sand.

One of them threw a meagre web-like shade over a group of newspaper reporters and Indian army officers who sat there the other day on tin chairs in a surrealistic circle and talked about the war.

Actually, the little war in question—the clash of arms between Pakistan and India for possession of this dismal wasteland—had ground to a halt. Even the static groups in their battle trenches were remote from us and nothing advanced our way except a mirage of trees along the level horizon, like a line of monstrous medieval knights. The battles we talked about were over, but far from satisfactorily decided.

We had been taken to the Rann to hear from Indian witnesses what had happened, especially in the fighting for Biar Bet. The Pakistanis had flown foreign newspaper reporters to the front straight after this engagement. They heard from soldiers still benighted by notions of success and the joy of their own survival that the Indians had been put to disorderly flight.

'Hyperbole'

We had gone round putting this version to the Indian troops and inviting their comments. Our party was less fortunate than the Indian reporter who claims to have had this stiff and splendid rejoinder from a common soldier: "This is a Pakistani hyperbole."

Our witness was a young major, second in command of the clump of trees and holes in the ground we were visiting. The colonel in charge of the press said: "Tell us some stories of gallant deeds," and the major—a member of the bearded Sikh community for whom modesty is unmanly, like cowardice—responded readily.

What he said was straightforward and didn't sound like a lame excuse. He said that when the Indians looked out of their foxholes at Biar Bet and saw the Pakistani infantry advancing out of Sind with tanks, they were not unduly frightened but astonished and shocked in their notions of fair play.

"In this 'small struggle,'" said the major primly, "we didn't expect that tanks would be used."

No Shame

The major says his soldiers stayed and fought as long as they could. A map the area commander had shown us back at base didn't suggest that when they withdrew they had gone as far as panic would have driven them. The soldiers we talked to showed no sign of that shame which a humiliating defeat is apt to make as visible as wounds.

The heat under the tree was intense, the efforts of the Indian reporters to prove themselves members of an heroic and warlike race admirably persistent. Now and then the hot wind would blow a slow cloud of salt-burdened dust across us, as from a silent explosion. It was difficult to think clearly about anything but thirst or to resist the appealing notion that in the good old days this discussion in the middle of nowhere could never have happened.

For then the armies of Sind and Kutch with their princely commanders would have fought for the Rann until total victory and utter defeat had put the right to possession beyond argument. It is the modern ideal, so largely the creation of Nehru's India, which requires such quarrels to be settled by what are called peaceful means but which replace the simplicity of war with acrimonious, confusing and endless dissension.

Cry Echoed

The reporters seemed to outbid the soldiers in their zeal for a swift return to the old style. They echoed a cry already heard in high civilian places in Delhi for the military redemption of India's honor. One hoped the implications had been made plain to them, for to these untutored eyes the Rann looked like a murderous battlefield.

The Rann is as flat and bare as a mortuary slab. For tanks there are none of the wadis and sandhills that offered them cover in the Western Desert. Nothing here could escape the eyes of fighter bombers. The mirage provides some camouflage, inflating a distant jeep to the stature of a furniture van. But otherwise a battle here would be a slaughter as unadorned as at Fontenoy.

There is often much to be said for the boring alternative. (London Observer Service)

Parliament's New Rules To Alter Power Structure

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Sponsoring long overdue changes in parliamentary procedure may not sound particularly courageous or important, yet the Pearson government's current reform proposals represent a step of tremendous potential significance.

Newman

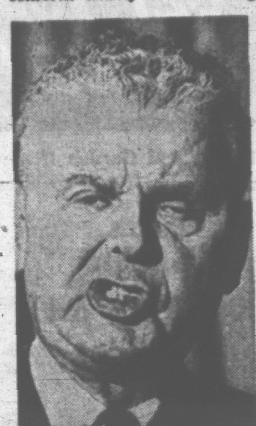

Once implemented, the new rules will permanently alter the power structure of Canada's parliament. Control over the pace of its deliberations will pass from the government side of the Commons.

Even as powerful a parliamentarian as John Diefenbaker will lose the ability to exploit the delaying tactics that now exists. The filibuster as a legitimate parliamentary technique will be obsolete.

The political leverage and constituency bargaining power of the opposition MP will be drastically diminished. A government, once in office with a comfortable majority—or an effective majority, like the Pearson administration—will be able to turn its throne speech proposals into law at a greatly accelerated pace.

Although the Liberal government's current set of proposals are a radical departure from existing practice, they conform closely to rules long in use by the British House of Commons.

DIEFENBAKER no more filibusters

With the sanction of "mother of parliaments" behind them, the Liberals are on strong ground in arguing that their measures in no way weaken the democratic character of parliament.

The really important change is the proposed allocation of time provision. Strict limits on debates will be arranged for each piece of legislation by a business committee including representatives of all parties. If these parliamentarians are unable to produce unanimous agreement, the timetable would be set in a day-long Commons debate.

Time Saver

Another time saver will be the 35-day limit imposed on the consideration of estimates, compared with recent marathon estimate debates of 48 days and more. A revitalized committee system would take over the detailed examination of departmental spending budgets.

The question period will be limited to 30 minutes daily to eliminate the notoriously time-wasting tactics of all the parties, which have turned it into a partisan free-for-all. Sitting hours will be extended to run over lunch and dinner periods.

The new rules greatly enhance the authority of the speaker. Appeals against his rulings will be forbidden and he'll have the power to disallow questions of privilege which he considers trivial. Any move to alter a speaker's ruling will be in the future have to take the form of a motion of censure—a drastic, seldom used device.

A Weakness

It's a grave weakness of the current proposals that they depart from the British precedent in only one major respect: there's no provision for the appointment of a permanent speaker. (In the U.K., speakers hold office for two parliaments or more and there's a convention that they run unopposed in their home constituencies.)

Alan Macnaughton, the present incumbent, characterizes the weaknesses of the existing system. A Liberal MP (Montreal Mount Royal) for 14 years before he was named speaker, he must now continue to fight for his seat although he can engage in no partisan activity on behalf of his constituents.

Macnaughton's political future depends on retaining the favour of his party, yet he must rule impartially over Commons disputes.

Liberals Unhappy

His performance in this minority parliament has made some of the more violently partisan Liberals unhappy. Certainly, he has given several tough decisions against the administration, when it would have been more diplomatic for him to yield to Liberal arguments. (One of Macnaughton's predecessors, Roland Michener, similarly earned the disfavor of his party and it wasn't until the Liberals were in power that he went to his reward as Canadian high commissioner to India.)

The speaker of the Commons now occupies an untenable position. The reform of Canada's parliament will not be complete until his high station is transformed into a permanent, non-political office. (Copyright)

Education 'Treadmill' Criticized

NEW HAVEN—Advice from the president of Yale University on how to digest an education:

"Take smaller bites."

Several times since he took office last October as the 17th president of Yale, Kingman Brewster, Jr., has hinted that he would like to do something about the treadmill aspect of acquiring an education.

"I think there ought to be more landings and detours along this escalator of academic achievement," he said in an interview.

What bothers Brewster is that formal education has become, for many young Americans, a non-stop process that goes on for 20 years. Small wonder some of the participants get a little weary along the way.

Brewster said he feels it might be sensible to "build in some discontinuity."

One way, he said, would be to make the conventional four-year program leading to a bachelor of arts degree five years instead. The student could have a year along the way to take a break if so inclined.

Another approach would be for students, immediately after completing high school or prep school, to spend one year in some worthwhile non-academic activity.

"I think there's a kind of blind conformity to the expectation that you must go straight from school to college," Brewster said.

Brewster does not intend that young men should defer starting college just to spend a year lying on a beach. He wants this year off to be invested in stretching the mind.

"It could be a job," he said, "it could be travel, it could be domestic peace corps work." (Associated Press)

CLASS LENGTH NEEDS CHANGE

CATHOLIC DIGEST

"Class periods of equal length are not realistic today," says Dr. Dwight W. Allen of Stanford University. "Some subjects require only a little time with the teacher; most of the reading, writing, and research need not be done in a classroom. Other subjects, science or home economics, for example, need longer periods of class instruction and laboratory work."

"Home is not the best place to do school assignments. The student isn't at his best after school. Study conditions may not be good. Reference books may not be available."

"Furthermore," Dr. Allen continued, "today's parents cannot help their children with modern curricula. Assignments are best done where teachers, library, labs, and equipment are available. With unscheduled school time, teachers can assign outside work in music, art, drafting, and typing; equipment for these is seldom available in the home."

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

Almost anywhere along the coast in both salt and fresh water you might see a most remarkable fish, the common stickleback, no longer than your little finger.

This little fellow is unusual in many ways: it is tolerant of widely varying living conditions, it is curiously constructed and it has odd breeding habits. Each of these aspects has been studied in great detail but surprising facts are still being discovered.

Thanks to a special design involving gills, kidneys and salt-secreting organs the stickleback can live equally well in fresh water or sea water. Usually fishes comprising any one population tend to stay more or less permanently in either fresh or salt water but some live near river mouths and move from sea to stream or vice versa at will.

Perhaps because of this versatility this fish ranges around the world in the northern hemisphere. Except for normal variations in structure those of the New World are identical with those of Europe and Eurasia and those found in California are the same as those in the Arctic or in the Great Lakes.

While the fishes from the various parts of its extremely wide range are all now considered to belong to the same species described by Linnaeus nearly two hundred years ago they do differ in minor details and this has caused considerable confusion in the past among those scientists interested in trying to classify this fish. The problem apparently arose from the fact that certain structures such as the bony plates protecting the body vary greatly in development according to the salinity of the water and even the over-all size differs with habitat.

The common name stems from a series of spines along the mid-line of the back. In our local species the spines are three in number and these together with a pair of belly spines can be erected at will and locked in position when danger threatens or when the fish prepares to fight. The pointed armature undoubtedly dissuades most predators from trying to swallow these small fishes but it doesn't always work. Certain birds and some larger fish will gulp down sticklebacks spines and all with impunity.

As in many other species the male is a nest builder but the structure he produces is unique in that it is held together by a sticky substance secreted by the kidneys.

The materials used in the nest are bits of plant tissue and other debris gathered piece by piece from the bottom in the immediate area of the nest site. The male pushes each item into position with the snout and then presses his abdomen onto the material to deposit a small quantity of adhesive. Bit by bit the structure grows until it is about the size of a fifty-cent piece but with a raised edge.

The male now takes up a position over the site and drives away all intruders except ripe females which are induced to spawn in the nest. When several have contributed the male becomes even more possessive and spends his entire time directing a current of water over the eggs and discouraging visitors by determined rushes with spines erected.

When the young hatch he continues to guard them by herding them into the shallows and standing watch while they feed. Eventually however, he can no longer maintain control over his scattering brood whereupon he leaves them to shift for themselves while he sets about constructing another nest.

Send questions in natural history to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Seagram's salesmen used to have a tough time selling 83

Our salesmen got a lot of calluses but sold very little whisky back in 1883. People wanted whisky that burned all the way down. And 83 was smooth, civilized, easy tasting whisky. Joseph Seagram refused to make it taste any other way. He would have lost his shirt, excepting that a strange thing happened. As years went by, the tastes of people changed. They wanted smoother and smoother and lighter and lighter whisky. And 83 was there to give them exactly what they wanted. So 83, the flop, became 83, the hit.

Canadian 'Legion of Honor?'

OTTAWA (CP)—For the Senate, it was another rough day for life, be abolished. And a New Democratic Party MP said that if some kind of the upper chamber, where members have been appointed servants who no longer have political usefulness, then copy the French Legion of Honor or the French Academy. The proposal for adopting France's method of honoring public servants was put forward Wednesday by Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo — Cowichan Islands) while the Commons debated a government bill to get a retirement age of 75 for future Senate appointees—they now are appointed for life—and establish an $8,000 annual pension for any retired senator.

Current senators could continue to serve or retire with the pension.

If the prime minister needs a way to reward political supporters, Mr. Cameron suggested, he should set up some other body, "a sort of Legion of Honor with a handsome pension attached to it, to which persons considered suitable could be retired."

When Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson tried to enter the debate, Gerald Regan (L—Halifax) wondered "if he would accept a Senate seat if he were offered one? Methinks thou dost protest too much." But he added Mr. Thompson would be a "worthwhile" member of the red chamber.

Mr. Cameron took issue with a suggestion by Mr. Regan that NDP members were motivated by "envy and jealousy" because none of them "have been or are likely to be appointed to the Senate."

His reason for opposing the Senate was "not because I have not been offered a job there; because I would not want it."

The only answer for the Senate, said Mr. Cameron, is the NDP proposal to abolish it. As it stands it is "an affront to democracy."

N.Z. Backs U.S. Stand In Asia

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Keith Holyoake said today the New Zealand government fully supports and approves of U.S. action in South Viet Nam but has not yet decided how it could best help the South Vietnamese people "in their tragic plight."

In a policy statement, Holyoake said: "Let me declare clearly and unequivocally that the New Zealand government fully supports and approves the action taken by the United States at the request of the government of South Viet Nam and more recently the support announced by the Australian government."

(Australia has announced it will send about 1,000 combat troops to South Viet Nam.)

Holyoake said the threat to New Zealand's security is every bit as real in Viet Nam as in Malaysia and probably more so.

Trust Man Charged

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon Heyd, 40, of Toronto, a former senior officer of the securities division of Crown Trust Co., was charged Monday night with the theft of $50,000 in negotiable bonds from the company last year. He also was charged with illegal possession of bonds.

CHILDREN IN JEOPARDY

Sixteen residents of the 1100 block Mason Street, have petitioned city hall asking to have the street blocked at Chambers Street.

Muriel Sotak and 15 others say their children's lives are in jeopardy because of the traffic.

A car struck a telephone pole and overturned on Mason St. last Sunday.

The petition has been referred to the city engineer's department.

July Classes Slated for Crusade

A further series of classes to prepare campaigners for the Crusade for Christ, to be held in Victoria Memorial Arena Sept. 5 to 19, will be held in July.

Crusade organizer Paul Leonard said the classes will be held in various Vancouver Island churches.

Dr. Leighton Ford will conduct the Victoria crusade next September along similar lines to the two-week crusade now being held in the Agrodome, Vancouver.

More than 11,500 people attended the Sunday afternoon and evening rallies when Dr. Ford spoke on Building a Christian Home.

"Too many homes today are foundering because young people rush into marriage with a devil-may-care, so-what attitude."

"A nation is like a pier, jutting out into the ocean. It rests on pilings. When one-third of the pilings go, it's like an earthquake. And when one-third of our homes break up, society is in grave danger."

JFK Memorial To Be Unveiled At Runnymede

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—The Queen will unveil Britain's memorial to John F. Kennedy Friday at historic Runnymede where 750 years ago the barons forced King John to sign the Magna Carta.

The Queen will dedicate the memorial as the president's widow and two children, Caroline, 7, and John, 4, look on.

Included on the guest list for the unveiling are senators Robert F. and Edward M. Kennedy, and their sisters, Mrs. Peter Lawford and Mrs. Stephen Smith.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, who arrived in London Wednesday to attend the ministerial meeting of NATO, will represent President Johnson.

Mrs. Kennedy and her party will be welcomed to Runnymede by the lord lieutenant of Surrey County, the Earl of Munster, and Lord Harlech, chairman of the Kennedy Memorial Trustees.

The Queen, accompanied by Prince Philip, will walk with Mrs. Kennedy to the memorial, a seven-ton block of Portland stone on a granite plinth, a paved terrace and two symbolic stone seats for contemplation.

The stone bears these words of President Kennedy at his inauguration:

"Let every nation know that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, support any friend or oppose any foe, to assure the survival and success of liberty."

The British government and individual Britons hope to raise £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) for the John F. Kennedy Memorial Fund. It now totals £850,000.

Christianity 'Ineffectual' by Rivalries

Conflict between rival Christian missionary groups has rendered the Christian message "completely ineffectual" in many countries, Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria said here Tuesday.

"Now there is a prospect the whole approach in the missionary field may change," the bishop told Victoria Kiwanis Club at a luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

"It has been suggested that Christian groups should not seek converts in areas where a Christian group is already established."

The bishop also welcomed plans for an official Protestant-Catholic discussion of doctrinal questions. He said plans for the discussion had been laid by Protestantism's World Council of Churches at its meeting in Nigeria last January.

The council had decided to set up a permanent committee to undertake a world-wide discussion with the Roman Catholic church at the official level on questions of doctrine.

"All indications to date suggest that the Roman Catholic church as agreed to accept the committee," the bishop said.

He described the council's move as a development of the decree on ecumenism issued by the Second Vatican Council last November.

He believed the decree would one day be said to have changed the face of the world.

Ecumenism he defined as "that common effort on the part of the Christian churches to work as corporate bodies toward Christian unity."

Pair Plead Guilty To Theft of Gasoline

David Twyman, 1853 Crescent, and John Brown, 649 Admirals, will be sentenced May 19 for stealing gasoline early Tuesday morning.

They siphoned gas out of a car parked on Lotbiniere St. but were caught about a half-hour later. Brown admitted the offence and Twyman denied it, but both pleaded guilty when they appeared in city court.

VD Cases Double Over 1964

During the first quarter of this year, cases of venereal diseases more than doubled over the same period last year in the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Health District.

The number of patient visits to the Victoria Venereal Disease Clinic at 2345 Richmond Road, also increased from 348 to 487.

The number of cases of syphilis diagnosed in the first quarter of this year increased to 12 from five in the same period last year. There were 40 gonorrhoea cases this year compared to only 22 last year.

There was also a significant increase in the number of cases of chickenpox, measles and rubella. There were 857 cases reported so far this year compared to 194 in the same period last year.

Because of the risk if an expectant mother develops rubella early in pregnancy, the health department, on the recommendation of the family physician, make gamma globulin available free of charge.

Total cases of tuberculosis also increased to 223 from 187 in the first quarter of 1964.

NATO in Compromise To Avoid Open Split

LONDON (AP) — Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization headed home a day early today after averting an open split over United States action in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

In a communique issued Wednesday night at the end of their annual spring meeting, the 15 NATO allies agreed that "grave threats have arisen to international security and peace" in Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, Malaysia and some African nations.

In the same paragraph they "reaffirmed the right of all peoples to live in peace under governments of their own free choice."

The statement represented a compromise between U.S. desire for endorsement of its policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic and French disapproval of those policies.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk flew to London Wednesday to put the American case before the allied ministers at a closed-door session.

Rusk insisted on the passage defining the Viet Nam war as a menace to world peace.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville demanded inclusion of the second passage to reflect President de Gaulle's view that all peoples, including the Viet Namese, should be allowed to settle their own future.

Rusk told the ministers that the United States was ready to enter peace talks on Viet Nam with the Communists nations, but noted that neither North Viet Nam nor China had shown any inclination for such talks.

Couve de Murville made clear France does not want a Communist victory in Viet Nam. But he repeated France's contention that unconditional peace negotiations should start at once and that U.S. forces must eventually get out of Viet Nam.

He also implied that U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam should cease.

Informants said France's stand won no support from other NATO members, but Norway's Halvard Lange and others did express fear that escalation of the Viet Nam conflict might lead to war with China or Russia.

The meeting had been scheduled to last through today. It apparently ended because the ministers realized they could come no closer to agreement.

Another factor was the absence of discussions on military questions. They will come up at a meeting of the alliance's defense ministers in Paris May 31.

The communique endorsed a declaration calling for a new approach to the Soviet Union on the question of reuniting divided Germany.

LBJ Rejects 'Political Honeymoon'

LONDON (AP)—A U.S. official said today President Johnson refuses to agree to France standing as the self-appointed spokesman for Europe.

Johnson could buy a political honeymoon with French President de Gaulle at that price, the source said, but Johnson is not prepared to pay it. Neither were former presidents Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

There would have to be a broad basis of consent from other nations before Washington would accept a Paris proposal that the United States, Britain and France serve as a three-power directorate for the non-Communist world, he said.

This difference of view was the basic point at issue between the United States and French governments, the informant said.

This week's North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference and last week's Southeast Asia Treaty Organization meeting, both in London, highlighted the growing divergences between U.S. and French policy.

Equal French-English Partnership 'Absurd'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan said Wednesday constitutional amendments that would lead to an equal French-English partnership in Canada would be an "absurdity."

"There is no such thing as a partnership between nations or provinces," said Frank L. Bastedo before the royal commission on bilingualism and bilingualism.

He was discussing a brief submitted by himself and Percival H. Gordon, 81, retired justice of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal.

The brief said that no Canadian familiar with the history of Confederation and the British North America Act can think there is equal partnership between the founding races.

This partnership "is a recent idea promoted in the hope of obtaining more special privileges for the French language."

Agree to Seek Peace

LONDON (AP)—Greece and Turkey agreed Monday to seek a peaceful solution to the crisis on Cyprus, the Mediterranean island where residents of Greek and Turkish descent have been feuding. A Turkish spokesman said this was agreed at a meeting of foreign ministers Stavros Costopoulos of Greece and Hasan Esat Isik of Turkey. The meeting took place on the eve of the spring session of the ministerial council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The brief, one of the strongest presented to the commission, said:

"We believe, with many others that a small minority group of French nationalists have now pressed much too far in demanding equality for the French language in nine provinces outside Quebec."

THE WEST'S FEELING

"It is felt too, in the Canadian west, that bilingualism does not just mean using English and French but English and any other mother tongue."

The brief delves deeply into Canadian history to show that French was never considered to be the official second language of Canada. It says that the history of Confederation is one of attempting to create one nation. It says that 67 per cent of all Canadians use English as their official language.

It suggested that those agitating for French language rights be "thankful they are citizens of this great country" and to consider the words of Prime Minister Wilfrid Laurier that "your duty is simply and above all to be Canadian."

After considerable discussion with the commissioners, Mr. Bastedo, 76, and now of Victoria, seemed to sum up the thoughts of the two men by saying that many people assumed that French and English have an equal status in Canada when appearing before the commission. They are led to that belief because the government of Canada had referred the matter to a royal commission whose terms of reference mentioned the partnership of two cultures.

Co-chairman Davidson Dunton said that the first report of the commission had said that there was a crisis in Canada, a danger of its breaking up.

"There is no crisis in any province west of Quebec," said Mr. Bastedo. "The main crisis is in Quebec."

JAPAN BOOMING MARKET...

Canadian Goods Big Problem

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor
TOKYO (CP).—Japan's expected economic growth during the next decade offers Canada a virtually assured market for increasing quantities of its raw materials.

A country with big plans but few natural resources, Japan will have to match imports of raw materials to its higher industrial output.

Last year it imported an estimated $350,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, more than 90 per cent of them raw materials and basic foodstuffs, making Japan Canada's third largest customer.

This could increase to more than $500,000,000 in a few years, if Japan's economy remains strong, trade officials say.

Expects Growth

Japan's industrial production is expected to rise 60 per cent by 1968 and, Hisanaga Shimadzu, recently appointed ambassador to Canada, has said, "if Canada can retain her competitive position exports of raw materials should show proportionate or even higher increases."

Canada has been devoting increasing attention to the Japanese market lately, as shown by the large-scale participation in the Tokyo International Trade Fair in April and a steady stream of official and unofficial trade missions.

FOURTH OF SERIES

Despite these pushes, however, chances of increasing Canada's sales of manufactured goods to Japan are rated dim at best.

"We're not worried about selling Japan asbestos, wheat or copper—they need those materials and we know the market is there unless our prices get way out of line," says one provincial trade official.

"But we can't seem to make them realize that we're a highly industrialized country capable of selling them goods at competitive prices."

Last year Canada's exports of manufactured goods to Japan accounted for less than three per cent of total sales—although Canada's wholly-manufactured exports over all rose 34 per cent.

Japan in recent years has been liberalizing its import regulations, but the booming domestic market remains a tough one for Canadian manufacturers, says John Blackwood, commercial secretary of the Canadian embassy in Tokyo.

Quick to Jump

About the only goods that stand any chance are those not made locally—and if a substantial market shapes up, there usually is a Japanese manufacturer ready to leap into production.

The sharp rise during the last decade in the Japanese living standards has created a demand for imported goods, but they usually are bought as much for mob appeal as for utilitarian purposes.

"The Japanese are the greatest brand-name buyers in the world," says one Canadian sales representative a bit ruefully. "So they buy American lighters or Swiss watches or German cameras just to show off, even though we might have as good or better products at competitive prices."

... FOR OUR RAW MATERIALS WHILE WINDFALL STOCK SOARED

MacMillan Firms Sold Short

TORONTO (CP).—Companies controlled by George MacMillan, president of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., and his wife Viola, sold shares of Windfall short last July while the stock was soaring on Toronto Stock Exchange, a royal commission was told Wednesday.

John Ricketts, a chartered accountant working for the commission, said the MacMillan-controlled companies went short more than 425,000 shares of Windfall during July.

A short seller hopes that a stock will go down in price. He sells stock he doesn't own, hoping to buy it back at a lower price and make a profit.

The breakdown of the short sales by company and the percentage ownership by the MacMillans was:

—Airquests Ltd., 100 per cent owned, 134,300 shares at an average of $2.14 a share.

Lumber Shipments Continue High Level

Lumber shipments out of Victoria continued to hit the 20 million board feet mark during April but imported general cargo continued to fall.

Don Jenkins, CNR dock agent at Ogden Point, said tonnage of imports there during April were practically nil.

"We just don't have the dock space. Ships are continuing the trend to by-pass Victoria to Vancouver, discharge there and have the goods shipped here by barge or truck," he said.

Only two of the five Ogden Point berths are available for discharging and they are not usually available, he added.

Lumber during April totalled 20,400,395 board feet—a slight drop from 22,395,847 during the same period in 1964.

Total so far this year is 90,692,395 board feet which is more than two million above last year's figure at this time.

Plywood shipments out of Ogden Point reached 1,577 tons during April and 203 tons of general cargo were exported.

Quebecers 'Deplore Lack Of Personality as Nation'

By AB KENT
Times Staff Reporter
QUEBEC—British Columbians and the rest of English-speaking Canada lack personality and are inclined to emerge like Americans, Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre Laporte told B.C. delegates here Wednesday.

In welcoming a 151-member Union of B.C. Municipalities tour of Quebec on behalf of the Quebec government, Mr. Laporte said:

"French-Canadians in a certain measure deplore your lack of personality as a nation. People tend to compare you with the English or the Americans. English-Canada, as we know it, does not want to be a nation."

He spoke at an official dinner meeting in Chateau Frontenac grand ballroom, greeting the B.C. goodwill tour—including 35 Greater Victoria councillors—on behalf of Quebec Premier Jean Lesage.

... DIFFERENCES
But because of language and culture differences, French-Canadians are very different from Americans, the minister said.

"They have something to protect, to conserve, and react sometimes violently, although violence is condemned by nearly the whole population."

"Simply, French-Canada wants to take its destiny into its own hands," Mr. Laporte said.

FULL PARTNERS
"We don't want to wreck Canada, but we want to be full partners in this country, full partners as we are, as French Canadians, with our own culture, our own ambitions, but still Canadians," he said.

The dinner was attended by representatives of the Quebec Union of Mayors, which inaugurated the visits provinciales with a tour of Victoria and Vancouver last fall.

B.C. Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell brought greetings on behalf of the people of B.C., in which he said the family of communities is as important to the vigor of provincial and national life as the family unit is to the strength of Quebec.

EVACUATED TO SAN JUAN, Rafael Antonio Bonilla-Aybar, 33, editor of the Santo Domingo newspaper Presa Libre, gestures as he said the United States action in sending troops into the Dominican Republic was the right one. He said he could add 150 names of Communists to the list which the U.S. released as being behind the revolt. (AP Wirephoto.)

NEW CALL COULD STRAIN RESERVE FORCES

700,000 U.S. Troops Overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. now has about 180,000 fighting men deployed in combat zones on two sides of the world—including ground troops, airmen and crews aboard warships in the areas of conflict.

The 73,500 ashore or in ships in the Viet Nam zone and the 34,600 in and around the Dominican Republic are in active fighting zones.

When forces on alert against possible trouble elsewhere are added to these, about 700,000 U.S. Servicemen are overseas. This is more than a quarter of the current military power of the U.S. armed forces.

Cold war requirements compel more troops in strategic positions overseas, ready to meet trouble. In South Korea, there are 50,000 men and in Okinawa about 30,000; in the Philippines about 15,000. In Europe and adjacent territories, including Turkey, there are about 328,000 men. Of these, 250,000 are in the 7th Army in West Germany, with more thousands in such places as France, Britain, Italy and Spain.

forces also are deployed in Thailand, Guam, Midway, Iceland, Greenland, Bermuda, the Azores, the U.S. naval base in Guantanamo and Puerto Rico. Outbreaks of trouble in any other place or further escalation of activity in Viet Nam could begin to place a strain on the strategic reserve forces kept ready in the U.S. for quick dispatch anywhere although this reserve has not been dipped into deeply yet.

Role for Harrison

PARIS (UPI) — British actor Rex Harrison will play the lead in a new Joseph L. Mankiewicz film "Tale of the Fox", based on Ben Jonson's play "Volpone", to be filmed in Italy this year, United Artists announced today.

Summer Access Eyed To C. Saanich Beach

Summertime access to the northern section of Island View Beach is under study by Central Saanich municipality.

Council, headed by Reeve R. Gordon Lee, visited the area Wednesday to examine the route of undeveloped Homathko Road. Reeve Lee said later construction of a light road, suited to summer use at least, will be considered. At present there is access to the southern portion of the beach but none to the larger northern sections.

About 400 yards of road must be provided. The portion now in use provides limited parking. Coun. Ray Lamont said he has seen an estimated 1,000 cars head for the beach, then depart because of the lack of parking. The northern reaches of the beach have adequate parking facilities for 1,200 cars and room for accommodation of 5,000 people, according to B.C. government park planner R. H. Ahrens.

ON ISLAND WATERS

Fun Boats Set to Greet Tourists

By MARK DICKINSON

The 1965 tourist season is drawing near and preparations are being made to give visitors to lower Vancouver Island a hearty welcome on the waterfront.

Craft of all kinds and sizes are undergoing refit to provide customers with sight-seeing tours, fishing charters, boat rentals and water skiing. Accommodation is planned for the hardy sportsman or the little old lady who wishes comfort in a rocking chair ten fathoms above hard ground.

In Victoria's Inner Harbour two Yukon Queens are building up steam in preparation for the heavy influx of tourists who wish a view of the historic sights and large commercial constructions along the waterfront of what was once an old whaling centre. These craft are fitted out to appear somewhat like an old Mississippi ferry with a high stern paddle wheel and "gay ninety" decoration on the superstructure.

Sports fishing is available in a variety of forms in the Oak Bay vicinity. Oak Bay Marina has made it possible for young and old, rich and poor to try their luck with the salmon in one of a dozen outboard powered rental craft, or one of three 27-foot high-speed charter boats.

The flag ship of the Oak Bay Marina fleet is a 61-foot craft that has been refitted with more than $30,000 worth of equipment since last November in an effort to have her cruising this summer. Service starts at the end of this month and will accommodate 39 passengers. The craft, which is the only one of its kind in the Pacific Northwest.

Possibly the most unique attraction to visitors to the lower Island's waterfront is the Royal Mail cruise of Fleet Boats Water Taxi. Each morning an eight-passenger craft leaves Sidney carrying Her Majesty's Royal Mail to four Gulf Island ports. During the three hour excursion, passengers tour 64 miles through island waters named after historic adventurers and explorers.

Hundred mile cruises through the Gulf Islands is a new feature this year. Operated by Gulf Island Tours based at Van Isle Marina at Sidney, three boats ranging in size from 30 to 48 feet will ply around Salt Spring Island and the southern islands. Three meals are served for a full day's excursion.

Charter boats ranging in size from 26 to 45 feet are supplied by Canoe Cove Marina at Sidney for week-long trips through the San Juan and Gulf Islands.

The most highly populated area on the lower island for sports fishing is Saanich Inlet. Almost every weekend during the summer season fishing derbies are slated for a catch of Spring or Coho salmon.

Between the half-dozen marinas located in Brentwood Bay, some 60 craft are available to the tourists. Boats range in size from man-powered rowboats to high-powered cabin cruisers. But the majority of rental craft is made up of 14 and 16 foot inboard putt-putts. Most rental companies supply fishing tackle and gear at no extra cost.

The tourist trade on the water is a rapidly progressing business—many have failed but many more have been successful.

This summer there should be enough water fun for everybody.

FORT RESTORATION TO INCLUDE MUSEUM

CRANBROOK (CP)—The British Columbia government Wednesday announced it will build a museum as part of the Fort Steele restoration, a projected multi-million-dollar tourist attraction.

Provincial Secretary W. D. Black said the three-stage construction program will begin this year and will be finished in time for official opening during 1967 centennial celebrations.

'We Have No Fears'
Of Election: John D.

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday night his party does not fear a general election and is ready to defeat the minority Liberal government in the Commons at any time.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there have been suggestions by Liberal propagandists that the Conservatives are unwilling to defeat the government on non-confidence votes. But it was the minority parties that were keeping the government in office, he said.

"Let me make it clear—this government should go," he said in a nation-wide television address on the CBC's free-time political series, The Nation's Business.

He said it is a government that "flounders in its own incompetence."

He accused the government of "chipping away at our traditional things." It was only willing to retreat from this campaign when its tactics were discovered.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Things I thought I would mention . . .

Before the first Western Hockey League playoff game between Victoria and Seattle, the phone rang in the Maple Leafs office.

"Hallo," said Rudy Pilouski. He had just predicted that his team would take the semi-finals in six games. He was feeling splendid.

"This is Joe Crozier," the voice said. Mr. Crozier coached, sort of, Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, and Victoria are subsidiaries of Toronto.

The Rochesterers were so strong last season that some people with New York Rangers and Boston Bruins couldn't have made Crozier's club. Now they were ready to open their playoff and Crozier was saying: "Look, Rudy, I need Al Miller. My goalie is hurt."

"YOU need Miller?" Pilous said, not quietly. "Who do you think I need to play goal? Ris Tin Tin maybe?"

They went at it for a few minutes, taking the hair off the telephone cables and Crozier lost. But minutes later George Imlach was on the blower to Victoria. Mr. Imlach is the lord high priest of all Toronto livestock, including those at Rochester and Victoria.

Imlach was loud and clear but he was double-teamed by Pilous and Buck Houle.

The next day, referring to the chat with Imlach, Houle said, "Rudy and I may be selling pencils next season." In other words, they had won the war but the price may have been high.

Houle, who gets ulcers worrying about what he can find to worry about next, swore everybody including seagulls to secrecy on the Miller episode.

In retrospect, it was a comedy of errors with Imlach the master of ceremonies. It shows rather significantly, I think, how Victoria rated in the Toronto hit parade . . .

SOCIAL NOTE: Arthur Wyer, 75, stepped into our town recently from Toronto . . . Who's Arthur Wyer? . . . Well, he was the older brother and trainer of Percy Wyer, Canada's greatest marathoner of the 30s . . . Percy ran in four Olympics, was U.S. marathon champion six times, received the Boston Gold Cup marathon trophy from President Franklin Roosevelt.

And what does trainer Arthur think of the current crop of hotfooters?

"Good. Especially Bruce Kidd."

Oh, you have seen Kidd work?

"Since he was five years old," Arthur Wyer said. "I knew then he had it."

Still on track, schoolteacher Stan Turner, 660 Milner, wonders why the YMCA and Canadian Legion Junior Olympic track programs have been abandoned here . . . Both groups taught adolescents the joys of bounding about in their short underwear last season but somebody seems to have pulled the plug . . .

Turner may try to interest Evening Optimists in taking on the job . . . The Optimists already have their toes in the track door . . . They are sponsoring this year's Highland Games . . . If a coach is needed, how about Art Wyer?

Are you still laughing, Polle?—Andy Heberton and Pat Stapleton, the meat and potatoes of the WHL champion Portland Buckaroos, are ticketed for San Francisco next autumn. The last laugh, however, may be on Polle . . . Stapleton deserves what Hal Layco calls "an honest shot—not a half a dozen games with Boston" and more poised, more confident and more mature, he may never look back.

Heberton, a pro's pro, discussed his future in calculated terms . . . "First things first," he said, in answer to a question about next year . . . "My children are at an age when they need me." He was saying what too many of us forget—that fathers ought to be seen and heard and wrestled with . . .

"Simple," he said. "I couldn't find what I wanted in the States. I could in Canada."

Flyers Hit Form In Tripping Kings

EDMONTON (CP)—Niagara Falls Flyers, who had been promising to show Edmonton fans some of their ability before the end of the 1965 Memorial Cup series, kept their promise Wednesday night.

They battered Edmonton Oil Kings 8-2 before 5,326 fans to open a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven Canadian junior hockey final.

Five goals were produced by flyer left-winger Brian Bradley, a 20-year-old native of Sudbury. He had help from Bill Goldsworthy, who scored twice, and Jean Pronovost.

The contest was played in quiet contrast to the rugged brawling that caused the final 3½ minutes of the third game to be stricken from the record Monday night. Monday's brawl resulted in suspensions to Derek Sanderson and Ricky Ley of Niagara Falls and Ron Anderson of Edmonton.

The Flyers scored three goals before Red Simpson retaliated for Edmonton with a goal off a deflection late in the first period.

KINGS HAD CHANCES
The Kings had several chances, most of them engineered by Fran Huck, but Bernie Parent played brilliantly in goal to preserve the two-goal edge until Bradley took over in the third period.

He broke the Kings' backs with a tally while the Flyers were shorthanded at 45 seconds of the period, taking a perfect pass from Gilles Marotte and steering it behind Edmonton goaltender Wayne Stephenson. Stephenson finished with 21 saves to 25 for Parent but that statistic was misleading. Huck was virtually the only Edmonton offensive threat and the Kings' defence was weakened severely by the absence of captain Bob Falkenberg.

Falkenberg suffered a concussion Monday after being beaten while unconscious on the ice during the brawl that led to the early finish of the third game. There was no indication whether he would be back for the fifth game Friday.

MAY MISS PREAKNESS

Debonair Isn't Lucky

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lucky Debonair, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was entered to-day for Saturday's 90th Preakness but was listed a doubtful starter after a swelling developed overnight in his right hind ankle.

Frank Catrone, trainer of Mrs. Ada L. Rice's colt, said the injury was minor but in the next breath added, "he's too valuable a horse to take any chances."

Catrone said the Kentucky Derby winner apparently nicked himself in a gallop over

Knudson In Elite Company

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—The prize distribution at the Colonial national tournament at Fort Worth shook up the standings of the Professional Golfers Association's official money winners.

A $2,850 purse for his eighth-place tie shoved Doug Sanders to the top of the heap with $36,108 and dropped Jack Nicklaus into second with $34,400.

The biggest switch, however, was the advance of Australian Bruce Crampton of Toronto into third and fourth places. Neither was in the top 10 last week, before they finished one-two in the Colonial. Crampton won $20,000 and Knudson $11,500 in the Texas event.

In over-all money winners, it was still Billy Casper at the top of the heap with $47,335, followed by Sanders with $45,557.

The top 10, with official money won in PGA-sanctioned tournaments listed first and over-all in brackets:

Doug Sanders, $36,108 ($45,557); Jack Nicklaus, $34,400 ($44,976); Bruce Crampton, $20,000 ($37,754); George Knudson, $11,500 ($28,974); Billy Casper, $23,367 ($47,335); Bobby Nichols, $23,359 ($25,563); Bruce Devlin, $22,295 ($24,564); Bob Charles, $19,950 ($22,453); Don January, $19,014 ($23,968); Dan Sikes, $18,104 ($20,941).

Others entered were Flag Raiser, Needles Count, Hail To All, Native Charger, Swift Ruler and Selari. With nine starters the race will be worth $180,600, with $128,100 going to the winner.

In the draw for post position, the speedy Flag Raiser won the No. 1 position, while Lucky Debonair wound up in the seventh slot. Other starting positions are Swift Ruler in No. 2, Needles Count in No. 3, Native Charger in No. 4, Selari in No. 5, Tom Rolfe in No. 6, Dapper Dan in No. 8 and Hail To All on the outside.

Tom Rolfe, third in the Derby, was the last to be named and was made the 3-1 second choice with Dapper Dan, loser by a neck to Lucky Debonair in the Derby, next in line.

Grouchy Gimple Has Hard Words for A's

Coquitlam 9, Shamrocks 8

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Coquitlam Adanacs have lit up the letters W-I-N on their private scoreboard and if you must hear it all, coach Gordie Gimple is not quite prepared to jump for joy.

"That's the poorest of the three games we played," Gimple declared moments after his Adanacs put the Inter-City Lacrosse League's roto-tiller through Victoria Shamrocks, 9-8.

A one-for-three record seems fair enough, but the novice young coach with the ICL's fledgling unit doesn't quite see it that way.

"The guys have let me down," said Gimple.

"We trained hard, and I thought we'd run the other three teams into the boards for the first two or three weeks of the schedule. But my team has been fagging out in the second half . . .

"And out here tonight, they made a lot of mistakes . . . threw away the ball too many times."

Scramble Could Be Best In Years

It would seem Mr. Gimple expects a great deal.

That being the case, this could be a most interesting season for the customers in Coquitlam, New Westminster, Vancouver and Victoria.

Taking only the first quick look into consideration, the scramble for positions could be the best in years. Adanacs, by virtue of Wednesday's Memorial Arena conquest of the off-color Shamrocks, showed they belong. And there isn't much between 15 points, one more than Westminster's Paul Parnell.

Ted Leibach played a strong game for the Rocks and scored two goals. Singles were distributed among Jack Showers, Bill Gray, Nirmal Dillon, Bill Munroe, Terry Davis and Reg Foster.

He was particularly effective when Coquitlam drew two successive penalties in the third quarter. Shamrocks, sporting a 7-6 lead at that point, trotted out their power-play unit.

But Schwitzer—and the goal pipes on two occasions—frustrated the Victoria attackers for four straight minutes.

That's how the score stood when they started the fourth and final quarter. Then Coquitlam rapped in three fast goals in the first five minutes of play for a 9-7 lead.

Peppery Jack Barclay was Coquitlam's main point-producer, pumping in a pair of goals—including the first one in the fourth quarter—and tacking on four assists for a six-point night.

Ken Oddy scored two goals and set up two more to regain the individual scoring lead with the Pimlico track Wednesday. Then the wound became infected and filled overnight.

Despite the injury, Lucky Debonair was made the 7-5 choice by track handicappers as nine three-year-olds were entered officially.

Tom Rolfe, third in the Derby, was the last to be named and was made the 3-1 second choice with Dapper Dan, loser by a neck to Lucky Debonair in the Derby, next in line. Tom Rolfe will be ridden by Ron Turcotte, a native of Grand Falls, N.B.

got ample protection rest of way as Adanacs tripped Shamrocks 9-8 at Memorial Arena.

Head Injury Proves Fatal

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Detroit heavyweight boxer Lucien (Sonny) Banks died today from a head injury. He was knocked out Monday night in the ninth round of a fight with Leotis Martin of Philadelphia.

Banks, 24, regained consciousness after the fight, but then lapsed into unconsciousness again and was rushed to Presbyterian Hospital.

Brain surgery was performed Tuesday morning to remove a blood clot and the 207-pound fighter had been in a coma ever since.

The death was the first boxing fatality in Philadelphia since 1956 when Robert Perry died after a bout with Rudy Watkins.

IN AUTO CRASH?
Dr. Robert S. Andre, a Philadelphia neurosurgeon who performed the operation, ruled out the finishing punch as a direct cause of the clot in Banks' brain. He said the injury looked as though the boxer had been in an auto crash.

Banks had no record of previous head injury through boxing, although he had suffered four knockouts in 27 fights. He had won 16 of his fights with knockouts and six others with decisions.

Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissioner Frank Wildman said earlier no investigation was planned of the fight.

Dallas Buys Tennis Rights From Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexico City has sold its rights as host to Davis Cup tennis elimination matches to Dallas.

If Mexico beats New Zealand in the early elimination round, it wins the right to meet the winner of the United States-Canada round.

The Mexican Tennis Association announced it has sold the rights to hold that match in Mexico City to the city of Dallas for $18,000 plus 50 per cent of the television fees.

Russia Seeks Africa Ouster

LONDON (AP)—Russia filed a proposal with the International Lawn Tennis Federation Tuesday asking the expulsion of South Africa from the federation because of its national policy of racial discrimination.

The proposal, submitted for the agenda of the federation's annual meeting at Munich, July 7, calls on the ILTF to follow the policy of the International Olympic Committee, which excluded South Africa from the 1964 Tokyo Olympics because of its racial policies.

WORTHWHILE NIGHT
Ward belted a home run, two doubles and a single and drove in four runs as the White Sox swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 7-4 and 6-4.

In other AL games Boston blanked the Yankees 2-0. Baltimore whipped Cleveland 4-2 and Detroit defeated Washington 5-2.

Killebrew, the only AL slugger since Babe Ruth to lead the league in home runs for three consecutive seasons ('62, '63, '64), did not connect for his first this year until May 2. In his last 11 games, however, he has hit five out of the park.

Milan Moves to Final By Blanking Liverpool

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Liverpool's dream of adding the European Cup to the English Football Association Cup they won at Wembley died in a 3-0 defeat by Internazionale of Milan Wednesday night.

Milan's victory in the second leg of the semifinal tie gave it a 4-3 win on aggregate.

Liverpool, which won the first leg match 3-1 at Anfield, England, May 4, was pegged back to level aggregate terms after only nine minutes Wednesday night. Outside-right Mario Corso scored in the eighth minute and a minute later centre forward Joaquim Peiro got a disputed goal which made the aggregate 3-3.

Milan, holder of the trophy, meets Benfica of Lisbon in the final here May 27.

At Neurnberg, a goal by outside right Terry Paine in the 36th minute gave England a 1-0 victory over West Germany in an international match.

At Strasbourg, France, Manchester United defeated Strasbourg 5-0 in the first leg of their quarter-final series for the Inter-Fair Cities Cup.

Scottish Summer Cup results: Dundee United 3, Dundee 2; Aberdeen 2, St. Johnstone 0; Morton 3, Partick 2; Clyde 3, St. Mirren 2; Airdrieonians 2, Kilmarnock 4; Third Lanark 1, Motherwell 3; Dunfermline 1, Falkirk 0; Hearts 2, Hibernian 2.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as topdressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top-dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and most important of all require less watering. In comparison, one dollar of chemical fertilizer will buy only about 15 pounds of fertilizer which at best contains only 3 pounds of plant food. It will therefore only act as a shortlived stimulant without any lasting value.

Hughes Sparks Firemen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending champion Vancouver Firefighters increased their Pacific Coast Soccer League margin to three points here Wednesday night by defeating last-place UBC Thunderbirds, 5-1.

Firemen need only two more points to clinch their second consecutive championship.

Veteran centre forward Art Hughes did most of the damage to UBC, scoring three goals—two in the first half and one in the second half. Inside right Jim Blundell scored the other two goals.

Substitute inside forward Harry Lenvoy scored the lone UBC goal, midway through the second half.

'Little Ships' to Make Pilgrimage

LONDON (CP)—More than 50 of the original Little Ships which helped to rescue the British Expeditionary Force in 1940 will set out June 4 on a 25th anniversary pilgrimage to Dunkerque, it was announced Thursday.

The "Whitsun Pilgrimage" is being organized by the Sunday Times, owned by Canadian-born Lord Thomson, to commemorate the historic evacuation.

The old fleet, including lifeboats, a Thames barge, an oyster-smack and many pleasure craft, will be escorted by Royal Navy vessels, two RAF air-sea rescue launches and 30 craft of the Yacht and Motor Boat Association.

They will be met in Dunkerque Roads by units of the French navy and French yacht club craft, which will escort them to berths in Dunkerque Harbor, now one of France's flourishing seaports.

Sunday, June 6, Whitsun, Dunkerque celebrates the 25th anniversary of its liberation in 1945, with British units again marching with Frenchmen who fought 25 years ago.

REFUGEE STOLE PASS — TWO LOSE FREEDOM

BERLIN (UPI)—West Berlin police this week arrested an East German refugee who fled to the West with a stolen pass.

Horst Streit, a 36-year-old engineer from the East German city of Halle, was ordered arrested by a West Berlin court for trial on charges he deprived two West Berliners of their freedom.

'Let Convicts Help Build North'

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal resolution he has placed on the Commons order paper. It comes up for debate later in the parliamentary session.

But if adopted by the government the plan also could play an important part in the development of the north, he said.

The resolution asks the government to consider "establishing minimum security work camps at strategic locations in the Canadian Arctic where selected convicts at modest remuneration would construct airstrips, harbors and other installations calculated to serve economic, scientific and other national interests."

Peanut butter was invented by the pre-Columbian Incas, who called it mani and venerated it as a sacred food.

RCMP escort doctor into thick bush at side of this house to examine body of murdered girl. The body was found about 200 yards from house.

LEADING the massive manhunt for the murderer of 14-year-old Susan Freschi is Inspector G. M. MacKay, second from right. Inspector MacKay met with RCMP officers Tuesday afternoon shortly after the nude body of the View Royal schoolgirl was found.

LAST WALK HOME for Susan Freschi started when she left bus at Helmcken Road and Old Island Highway (at right of map). She then proceeded along Old Island Highway and took short cut either along CNR tracks or path, police said. Her body was found in bush between tracks and path.

Outdoor Camp In Okanagan Has Few Takers

Nature enthusiasts are missing opportunities for outdoor living in the Okanagan this summer.

Two 10-day camps at Peachland, B.C., are being sponsored by the B.C. Nature Council and the Canadian Audubon Society who say they have had little response so far.

Specializing in study of natural history and conservation, the camp program includes nature photography, swimming and hiking.

Biologists, naturalists and teachers are on the camp staff. First camp period, June 7 to 18, is open to adults, and second period, June 20 to July 1, is for boys and girls, grades 8 to 11. Adult fee is $75, children's fee $30.

Applications are available from Mrs. W. J. Smith, 1108 Hillside Rd., West Vancouver.

Truckers to Vote Sunday, Monday On New Contract

Truckers in Victoria and Nanaimo will vote Sunday and Monday nights on a new contract with six cartage companies.

An official of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters said today the union will recommend acceptance of proposals reached at a day-long meeting Tuesday in Nanaimo. No details of the proposed contract will be disclosed until after Victoria members vote Monday night, he said.

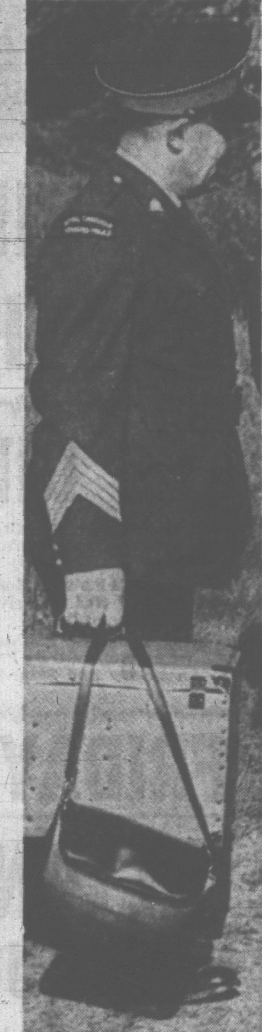

Involved are five cartage companies here employing 150 drivers, helpers and warehousemen and one Nanaimo company with about 50 men.

BUS operator William Savage remembered Susan Freschi, victim of a brutal murder Tuesday, getting off his bus at 7:40 p.m. at Helmcken and the Old Island Highway. Other than the murderer, he is believed to be the last person to see Susan alive.

POLICE DOG, Brandy, from Nanaimo, located a rock which is believed to be the weapon used Tuesday to murder Susan Freschi. The dog followed a track in the vicinity of the murder from late afternoon until dark.

PURSE of murder victim is dangling from the hands of Staff Sergeant R. D. Walters, RCMP identification expert, as he takes part in conference with other police officers near where body was discovered.

The final dance of the Silver Spurs Square Dance Club will be presented Friday at Royal Oak Hall. The club will not reconvene in the fall.

Theft Admitted From Centre

VANCOUVER (CP)—Niel McDougal Morton, 42-year-old bookkeeper, pleaded guilty when he appeared in police court here Wednesday charged with stealing $3,575 from the Killarney Community Centre. Court was told Morton, a member of the RCAF for 15 years and a former accountant for the Canadian Pacific Railway, took the money between August, 1964, and March 1965 to support his wife and children.

A MODERN 'DAVID' FIGHTS ON BUTTONS, NAILS, MOTHBALLS

OTTAWA (CP)—There's a sort of David and Goliath atmosphere at the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada hearings now going on before the board of transport commissioners.

"David" is Lovell C. Carroll of Montreal, the lone lawyer speaking for 105 Ontario and Quebec municipalities and four municipal associations.

These groups are opposing Bell's proposed formula for a higher level of permissive profit, claiming it will encourage Bell to seek a telephone rate boost.

"Goliath" is Bell, represented by six lawyers working in relay, a half-dozen vice-presidents, assorted other senior executives, a bevy of hired experts and a three-member public relations team, all backed by a clerical staff in a well-equipped office installed in a Chateau Laurier suite across the street from the board courtroom.

Mr. Carroll, a slim, balding man with a disarmingly mild manner, operates out of a battered brief case. He has no assistant, no office staff and no office other than his file-crammed hotel room.

Common Objects in Home Pose Threat to Children

Buttons, needles and toothpaste tops are potential instruments of death found in every home.

Marbles, pins, and nails join the list.

Any one of these seemingly harmless objects could cause suffocation and death if a small child is tempted to put them in his mouth.

Such common household items as bleach, mothballs, furniture polish and weed killer become lethal poisons when they fall into the hands of young children.

Pot handles left within reach on the stove invite exploration by a child—and a possible burn or scald.

This information and many similar warnings are contained in Home, Safe Home, a 32-page booklet of safety hints which has found its way into more than a million Canadian households.

Published by the Canadian Gas Association with the help of 19 national safety organizations, the booklet pinpoints danger spots where most home accidents happen.

Two Methods

It also shows ways of avoiding or eliminating the hazards which cause thousands of accidental deaths yearly in Canada.

First aid hints, poison antidotes and two methods of artificial respiration are also outlined.

Home, Safe Home stresses safety practices where children are concerned, since youngsters under 15 form a major percentage of home accident victims.

Over 200 children a year die in home fires so —don't leave oily rags or piles of newspapers in basement, attic or garage.

—don't run electric wiring under rugs.

—do keep screens in front of the fireplace.

—do supervise children around bonfires.

—do replace frayed electrical cords immediately.

Suffocation

Suffocation causes deaths of almost 400 children annually in Canada, the majority of victims under one year of age.

Besides keeping small, dangerous objects out of reach, be sure children do not play with plastic bags, blankets or sheets.

Soft bedding and pillows can also be dangerous.

To prevent accidental poisoning, make sure all harmful substances are clearly marked, and always keep medicines out of reach.

Not In Dark

Never take or give medicine in the dark.

Sharp knives, power tools and cigarettes can also cause miscellaneous accidents when not handled with care.

Where home workshops are concerned, keep your mind on your work and your fingers on your hands, says the book.

And finally, outside the home, always check for children before backing your car out.

AT SAINT ANN'S

Tributes Planned For Eight Sisters

This Saturday the Sisters of Saint Ann will pay tribute to eight of their number who have completed 50 years of dedicated service in the care of the sick and aged.

One of them is Sister Mary Fernando, who came to Saint Ann's from her former home in Prince Edward Island in 1913 and is now receptionist at Saint Ann's Academy.

Previously she was active in hospitals, schools and infirmaries on the Pacific Coast.

Another is Sister Mary Lucy of Rome, who has taught music in Victoria and Nanaimo and is now in charge of the music department at Little Flower Academy, Vancouver.

She will return to Victoria for the jubilee celebrations.

Sister Mary Bertholde, formerly of Holden, Mass., has spent 50 years in the west and is now chapel sacristan at the Temple of the Lord, St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria.

STILL IN DUTY

Sister Mary Kathleen, from Prince Edward Island, is still on duty at St. Ann's Academy, New Westminster, and formerly worked at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Sister Mary Jean, from Massachusetts, spent 25 years as a teacher in the Yukon and now devotes part of her care to the gardens at Mount St. Angela, Burdett Ave.

Sister Mary Thomasina, from

Nova Scotia, has given most of her religious life to the education and care of native children in B.C., Alaska and the Yukon. She is now a seamstress at St. Ann's school residence, Duncan.

Sister Mary Gregory, from Prince Edward Island, nursed at St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria, for many years and is now its medical librarian.

Sister Mary Epiphane, from Quebec, is coming to Victoria for the jubilee celebrations from the Sacred Heart Hospital, Smithers, B.C., where she is still on active duty.

The program will open at 10 a.m. with the celebration of Mass in Saint Ann's Academy chapel by Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria.

Saint Ann's Academy will hold open house from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

UBC States Policy On Athletic Grants

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia senate emphasized today that athletic scholarships will not be granted solely for the purpose of recruiting outstanding athletes for the university.

In a statement clarifying its policy of permitting public donations to provide athletic awards for outstanding athletes, the senate said such recipients must maintain general proficiency in their studies.

Arthur Mayse

I hadn't intended to mention my last-week battle with a virus in this corner, preferring to be spartan about the whole dismal and depressing business. Since everyone else is boasting about his flu, however, I might as well get in step with the regiment.

And regiment it is. I don't know how many make an epidemic; but if all the sore throats, tight chests and stuffy noses were laid end to end, they would ring this afflicted city with a sniffling, coughing, sneezing perimeter.

I'm not sure which particular set of vapors chose to grab me by nose and throat. But I visualize the bug as green, with a barbed tail, red eyes, horns, long yellow fangs, and a mad appetite for antibiotics.

In anything of this sort, the first step, of course, is to call the family doctor. After dawdling around with a couple of appendectomies, delivering his day's quota of babies and treating an emergency or two, ours arrived in his little red sport car.

"Aren't you overdue?" he asked as he removed his stethoscope from the dry ice and tested it for coldness against my short-ribs. "Usually you come moaning in toward the end of the legislative session."

His drill completed, he prescribed $6.95 in pills and exploded out of our driveway with a twin-stack high compression "room."

When the prescription arrived, I took one white pill and one blue as prescribed, then set out to write next day's column.

No deal! After an hour of fuzzy-headed labor, it became plain that the quick brown fox wasn't going to make it over the lazy dog's back, and I crept off to bed.

If this particular noxious bug has already invaded your system, you'll know what I mean. If it hasn't, don't fool around once it takes hold. Go to bed and settle down to enjoy your misery!

As a matter of fact, this virus and I were fighting a return engagement. The first time it hit me, we were both in the army, and going to bed was the one thing I didn't propose to do.

This attitude was shaped by a few visits to stricken chums in the camp hospital, a grim little warren patrolled by anti-septic and steel-eyed nurses who took the view that Other Ranks had no right to go sick, considered the Lady with the Lamp a sofie with no sense of discipline, and according to rumor, insisted that privates die at attention.

So I took myself off to the aid post, where a guy I knew pained my throat with dark-brown bellies out of a bottle, applying it with a spatula the size of a cricket bat.

I don't know what that stuff in the bottle was, but it didn't fool around. One swabbing and you welcomed a route march or a brisk run up a mountain to get away from the taste of it.

No bug could withstand it, and half a dozen applications brought me to such a pitch of military briskness that I was promoted to acting lance corporal without pay.

In this present instance, the little white tablets and the big blue pills have done their work. Except for an overall languidness that sets in at the sight of spade or lawnmower, I'm right as ever, or will be after a good solid trout-fishing weekend.

Meanwhile, since the virus is still prowling our streets, I suggest, my friends, that you drink sparingly, eat lightly, avoid late nights and think good thoughts.

I don't mean this will prevent you from catching it, since you probably will. It just sounds like good general advice.

Return to Base

Three Esquimalt-based warships returned here late this morning after a two-and-a-half month cruise to the Far East. Hundreds of naval families were re-united again today after destroyer escorts HMCS Saskatchewan, HMCS Mackenzie and the ocean escort HMCS Beakon Hill tied up at HMC Dockyard.

The three-ship squadron, under command of Captain R. J. Pickford, visited ports in Midway, Guam, Hong Kong, Japan and Alaska.

"ON BEHALF OF ALL PEOPLE" John and Gail Simpson will take part in approaching peace demonstration at Comox despite risk of job, fine, or jail. The young Victoria couple follow Quaker faith.

Resources Conference Boycotted by Quebec?

Second Minister Fails to Arrive For Meeting Here.

By JOHN MIKA

A vital federal-provincial conference of resource ministers opened here this morning with an unspoken but worrisome question.

Has Quebec boycotted the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers?

It arose after the second of two Quebec ministers announced as coming failed to show up for the opening session.

In an interview before the closed meetings began National Resources Minister Arthur Laing denied there was any substance to reports that some provinces, led by Quebec, suspect the advisory council was formed as a federal manoeuvre aimed at gaining virtual behind-the-scenes control of all resource policy.

Quebec's controversial Natural Resources Minister Rene Levesque was reported as holding this opinion. He originally was scheduled to represent his province at the two-day session here but Wednesday it was announced a substitute would be sent.

DIDN'T TURN UP

The replacement, Quebec Lands and Forests Minister Joseph Cliche, did not turn up for the meeting this morning and it was not known if he would come at all.

Ironically, if there is an undeclared boycott, one of the several controversial discussion topics for the closed-door sessions is the principle of provincial "opting out" of national resource programs.

Only other absentee was Newfoundland Mines, Agriculture and Resources Minister W. J. Keough, but although Quebec and Newfoundland are feuding over the huge Hamilton Falls power project, this was seen as a coincidence. He had been reported in failing health recently.

(In one of the first items of business, it was learned the council dropped Mr. Levesque from the council's executive but this was described as routine in line with the policy of rotating directorships among the provinces.)

Asked about reports of provincial suspicions, Mr. Laing said the council was formed as a result of the 1962 Resources for Tomorrow conference which brought whole-hearted approval from the provinces.

AIDE IGNORED

An aide recalled the criticism by Mr. Levesque but Mr. Laing, ignoring the aside, said:

"I don't believe there is that feeling anywhere. We see no evidence of it and we're very happy with the co-operative spirit."

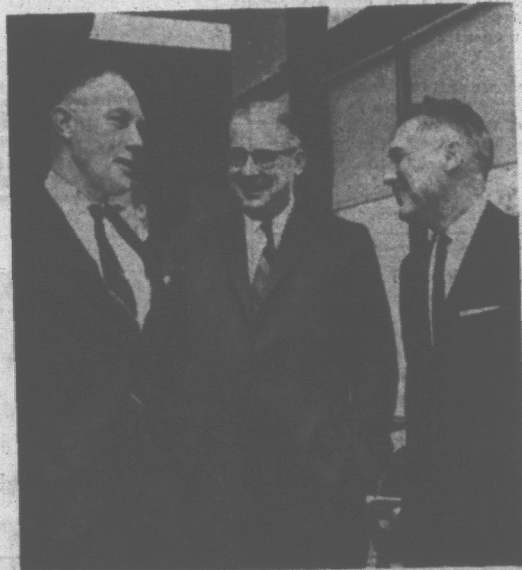

"We're trying, as most nations are, to properly organize resources on the basis that if you organize your parts you will create something that is greater than the sum of your parts."

Under questioning, Mr. Laing said there was no conflict between him and Premier W. A. C. Bennett on the question of exporting water — one of the topics of the meeting.

"I think in the future, water is going to be the big issue in Canada. It will be the greatest determinant of our future, particularly as it relates to the United States."

"If there is an agreement at any time in our history for water to be exported to a foreign country, it naturally will require a federal undertaking."

A conference secretariat official later told reporters that the initial session dealt with routine internal administrative matters.

PRINCIPAL CHARGES:

Teachers Pressured To Support U-Drive

Two departments of education officials are pressuring teachers in Greater Victoria into contributing to the Tri-University Capital Fund Campaign, it was charged today.

S. J. Willis High School principal H. R. Dawson said the two teachers from most schools in Greater Victoria attended. "This is a subtle and insidious way of contravening the established policy of the GVTA," said Mr. Dawson. "It is being camouflaged in a variety of ways, but it is a real undermining of the association and teachers are taking the bait."

Selected teachers from each school staff were urged to a meeting by government officials and then instructed in the methods of contacting other school teachers. It is highly irregular.

"While I am opposed to the present methods of university financing, the complaints I voice now are not directly concerned with this."

EXTRACT MONEY "Organizing people to extract money is a subtle form of government tyranny."

"I've got nothing against a university being publicly endowed. It has been done for thousands of years."

"But the situation does become bad when the government begins to organize charity to escape the responsibility of building universities by taxation."

Mr. Dawson said one of the rules of the teacher's association is that charity appeals be left up to the individual members. He said this was apparently being ignored by the government officials and was given tacit approval by the executive of the association itself.

Inspection Tonight

Air cadets of the Sidney Kinsmen No. 676 Squadron will parade for inspection tonight at Patricia Bay Airport.

'NOT COMMUNIST OR CRACKPOT'

Peace Walker Ready for Job-Loss or Jail

By PETE LOUDON

A young Victoria social worker and her husband will risk their jobs, fines or jail to demonstrate against nuclear weapons at Comox.

Denying that they are crackpots or Communists, John and Gail Simpson, both 24, plan to take part in a peace march—they call it a peace walk—from Victoria to Comox RCAF base, starting May 22.

The couple, married last November, are both "applicant visitors" in the Society of Friends (Quakers) here, but acting on their own.

She is a social worker for the provincial government. He is employed by Royal Trust Company.

Mrs. Simpson told the Times in an interview:

"I am prepared to go to jail."

"It is every person's own decision whether his concern (for humanity) supersedes his concern for monetary security."

Mrs. Simpson said she fully realizes that because she is a civil servant, her department might frown on her participation in any civil disobedience, that efforts might be made to dissuade her, or that her job might be forfeit.

She said it is only through such demonstrations that people who are dedicated to peace can be counted.

"It can be called bizarre, but then, the whole thing is bizarre," she stated.

She added, "This concern of ours is not for one social or political group. It is on behalf of all people."

Mrs. Simpson said the Comox march is known as Comox Project '65 to those who are taking part. She said it is mainly a Vancouver venture but five or six other Victorians are expected to take part.

Peace Groups

The core of the movement consists of 15 or 16 people drawn from various "peace groups" in Vancouver, who have been trained in passive resistance and civil disobedience.

Under the leadership of a 22-year-old student, Peter Light of that city, they will try to obtain entry to Comox RCAF station, at the risk of arrest, to obstruct the daily routine there.

It was reported Tuesday that since last weekend nuclear weapons now are stored there.

The marchers plan to proceed with their plan despite knowledge that trespass on Department of National Defence property carries heavy penalty.

The Criminal Code stipulates a maximum fine of $1,000 or a maximum 12 months prison, or both where access or egress is blocked.

The organizing group is a loosely formed committee drawn from various organizations connected with Peace House, their Point Grey headquarters, in Vancouver.

Light House

The $175-a-month rented property was obtained largely through efforts of Mr. Light. Recently he has provided training for demonstrators there. Several live on the premises.

Mrs. Simpson says Mr. Light attended both UBC and McGill but didn't complete his course in Montreal because of his involvement in a 1963 peace march from Quebec to Guantanamo, Cuba. Several members of the march were jailed in Georgia.

He went to Georgia and also was jailed. On his release he took part in a peace demonstration at La Macaza air force base in Quebec last fall.

He has since been involved in several demonstrations in Vancouver concerning the war in Viet Nam and the U.S. consulate.

Pacifist First

"He is a pacifist first and secondly a civil rights worker," said Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. Simpson said financing for Project '65 is dependent on volunteer subscriptions. From its start May 22 until June 6 the cost is expected to be $1,200.

"But they hope to remain at Comox all summer if they can raise the money." All those taking part have been asked to provide sleeping bags. Mr. Light is at Comox now seeking a rented headquarters or a camping area for the campaigners. He expects about 200 people to take part.

Attend Climax

The Victoria delegation is expected to drive back and forth to night meetings while the march is under way and to attend the climax of the event, the attempt to enter the base June 2.

Mrs. Simpson said the campaigners will try to put on a good appearance to improve their "image" in the public eye.

"Most of them are young and not always the best dressers. But they are trying to enforce rules for dress and appearance."

She said only those persons trained in civil disobedience methods will be allowed to take part in the attempted entry of the Comox base, or a resultant sit-in.

"With untrained people tempers are apt to fray and somebody could take a poke at someone else."

Stand Vigil

She added, "We don't want Comox people to feel we are against them or their jobs." Most demonstrators will merely stand vigil at the gates of the base.

How will the demonstrators face up to threat of jail or fine?

"In every peace demonstration it is the individual's decision when the time comes, that decides his action."

"I'll take part in the civil disobedience if I am permitted," she said.

"I'll take part even though it may have some effect on my job."

She said the demonstrators will approach the gate and ask "Will you open?"

"They probably will say no. We will ask again and they will refuse again. Then the spokesman says 'I am going to enter.'"

"The intent is to enter and then attempt to obstruct day-to-day activities."

Try to Enter

"An attempt will be made to enter. If we get in we expect either to be taken into custody or removed outside the gate."

"That is when the sit-in usually starts. We sit by the gate and refuse to let anyone enter unless or until we are taken into custody."

Mrs. Simpson said, she took part in recent demonstrations outside the U.S. consulate and at Victory Square in Vancouver.

"In that case we kept walking and there was nothing they could do."

"At Comox, after the civil disobedience attempt there will be a sit-in."

"The people taking part are mostly students or ex-students. Occasionally there are dear old people struggling along on canes."

"We seem to get either the very young or the very old, but very few middle-aged people."

"The ones who join us are probably those who have the least to lose."

Mrs. Simpson was born in Victoria but went to Vancouver as a child and obtained her BA and MSW there. Her husband was born in England, lived in South America, but came to Victoria at an early age.

He obtained his BA at University of B.C. in 1962 studying linguistics. He later attended Reed University and University of Alberta, working toward his master's degree.

He became interested in the Society of Friends after being married in their church. The couple lives at 320 Bessborough.

Who Closed The Door To Marchers?

Mystery Order Won't Stop Speechmakers

Who lowered the boom on use of St. John Ambulance hall here by peace marcher Peter Light?

The Pandora Avenue hall had been rented to the Humanist Fellowship who are sponsoring an appearance here by Mr. Light Friday.

Then suddenly, without explanation, the rental was cancelled.

Was it a case of attempting to squelch Mr. Light St. John officials here were asked.

Executive members here all claimed to know nothing about the refusal.

Chairman George A. Barr was out of town when the refusal was issued. Vice-chairman Col. J. W. D. Symons said he knew nothing of the cancellation, but "I agree the use of the hall might stir up controversy."

FROM VANCOUVER

House committee chairman Edward Thomas suggested the order might have come from the provincial executive at its Vancouver headquarters.

"I am under instructions," he said. "Locally we can't do or say anything. We get instructions and can't disobey them."

Contacted at Vancouver, provincial secretary Basil K. Wallace, however, said he knew nothing about the situation. He said he would ask the provincial director, J. W. Cronk.

Meantime, Humanist chairman in Victoria, R. F. Jeffs said the meeting will go ahead at 8 p.m. Friday as scheduled, but at Holyrood House.

He said he doesn't favor Mr. Light's plan for civil disobedience, a sit-in at the RCAF station gates after a peace walk from Victoria. But Mr. Light's speech here is to recount his experiences with the civil rights movement in the southern U.S.

REGETTABLE

And Mr. Jeffs regrets that this should be subject to attempted censorship.

The former RCAF wing commander, former chamber of commerce secretary and former air attaché to several European stations of the Canadian diplomatic corps is now a Sanich social worker.

He states, "We as humanists, do not advocate violence or even peace marches. But we need freedom for individual rebellion in order to express our sense of values within a democracy."

He said the peace demonstrators are in the Hyde Park Corner tradition.

"A young educated man who has dedicated himself to the cause of peace and freedom... should be heard in his own province. He may have a message for all of us."

Ed Silver was elected chairman of the Vancouver Island chapter, American Society of Metals, at its annual general meeting in the Dockyard Officer's Club Wednesday evening.

Fred Frudd was elected vice-chairman, John James secretary and Len Thomas, treasurer.

Forty-three members of St. John Ambulance Association and Brigade will be presented with efficiency awards Saturday.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will make the presentation at 2 p.m. at Government House.

Annual meeting of the Esquimalt-Sanich New Democratic Party Association elected Percy Rhodes as president Wednesday night. Others elected were: vice-president, Molly Phillips; secretary, Ian Campbell; and directors, Charles King, Al Carley and Jean Rhodes.

Victoria Flying Club will present the first open house of its new facilities Sunday and Monday at Patricia Bay Airport.

Modern single and twin-engine aircraft as well as pilot training facilities will be displayed for public viewing. More than 22,000 pilots have graduated from club courses in Canada since 1948.

The evening was entertained by Dave Peppers and the Doctors' Band, the Twin-Tones (cancan dancers) and Bob Faulds and his orchestra.

Woman 'Only Fair' After Car Accident

A city woman today was reported in only fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital following a traffic accident Sunday at Bay and Rose Streets.

She is Mary Louise Kermode, 24, of 849 Princess. Also injured in the mishap was her 12-week-old son, Michael, but he is reported in good condition.

Topics of the Day

An accident in the Crystal Garden last month has resulted in a claim.

Barbara Bill, a nursing student at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was cut on the head when a window frame fell on a table in the Flamingo Room.

The cut bled profusely and a stained her dress permanently.

She is asking that the city replace the dress, valued at $19.95 and also pay a cleaning bill for $1.65.

The claim will be referred to the city's claims agent.

Green algae has been cleared from Langford Lake by nature but the situation is under continuing observation, metro health board's sanitation chief, Elmer S. Gropp, reported Wednesday. The algae has curtailed recreational activities on the lake and was blamed by residents for the deaths of several dogs.

HMCS Grise, the RCN's west coast submarine, will be in Portland, Ore., June 9-13 for the city's annual rose festival.

The sub carries nine officers and 80 men and is under the command of Lieut.-Cmdr. John Rodocanachi.

A city man reported to police he lost $400 in tools from his locked garage between Tuesday morning and late Wednesday afternoon.

Edward N. Smith found a padlock was broken to gain entry to a garage to the rear of 2615 Blanshard St.

Stolen were auto-body tools, seat belts and other tools.

A U.S. coast guard cutter and a USN tug will visit B.C. ports near the end of the month.

USS Tatnuck, a cutter with a complement of four officers and 29 men will visit Nanaimo May 24 for Empire Day ceremonies.

USS Cahokia, a large tug with a crew of four officers and 34 men, will visit Vancouver May 26-28.

Ask The Times

Q. How old is Bob Hope? My friend says he's 72 and retiring from TV. I don't think he is near that age. N.W.

A. You're right. Bob Hope will be 62 May 29.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A Face Tells the Painter How the Person Lives

Yesterday I wrote about beauty and gave some suggestions to women who were not born beautiful, which means most of us. Today I want to pass along to you some of the things one of America's most distinguished portrait artists told me.

"A face tells the painter how the person lives."

"A woman is born with her Lowman eyes, but her mouth and chin muscles tell what she really is, reveal her character."

By this he meant that the eyes do not change, but that our habits of thought and attitude toward life and our emotions mold the contour of our mouth and chin to a certain extent. For instance, a mouth can be tight with tension or grimace, or pulled down at the corners because of habitual dourness.

"The most attractive face belongs to the person who has been tested by life and come out on top. Girls have surface beauty, but there is deeper beauty in a woman's face. The very young are transparent while the woman who has weathered everything in a vibrant way has a beauty which is far superior."

"What you think and how you live does show in the face. Shortage of sleep affects the tone of the complexion."

"Keen interest in life keeps the face young. When interest in daily environment dies the face grows old rapidly."

"An artist can tell by the hands how well co-ordinated a person is."

"A hairdo can make or break a portrait." (It can make or break a woman, too!)

"A slight irregularity in features is relaxing. Irregular balance is more attractive than perfect balance and the person usually has more personality. Absolute symmetry would be dull."

"Overplucked eyebrows deplete personality."

For New Furniture These 'Teak' the Cake

By PENNY SAVER

This member of the Saver household is on a "decorating kick" again! I had a look around at the hodge-podge of furniture collecting dust in the rumpus room and decided to rid the house of the whole mess and start anew. So, downtown I went to see if there was anything different and practical which would be smart to look at and yet comfortable and useful in the furnishings department.

I found just the thing, too, to give the room the "lift" it needed.

These are little stools, suitable for a rumpus room—for a snack bar—for a child's room—or as a kitchen stool for Mom. Tops of these are made entirely of teak, sturdy and resilient. Legs are metal. These are lightweight enough for a child to carry around, and the price is unbelievable. Only $3! For easy storage, they can be stacked away in a corner.

For a table to accompany the big overstuffed easy chair I just can't bear to get rid of, I noticed this handy article.

This is also of teak, shaped like an artist's palette. It's strong enough for you to sit on if you wish! Down below is a magazine and book rack which is situated under the top for a more compact appearance. Sliding out from under the top is an ashtray which hides from sight when you don't need it. Price is $21.

If you do a lot of entertaining, here's the table for you. Selling for $15 is a new type of teak table, ideal because the top can be easily removed and used as a tray. The edges are turned up to prevent spilling.

Speaking of teak, here's the answer to protecting the fine finish and grain of the wood. Selling for $1 for a jar and $1.50 for a can is a terrific new kind of teak wood polisher. Not only does it clean and restore the lustre of the wood, it also goes deep into the wood fibres to lubricate and protect the finish. No oily appearance with this!

Decorating? Penny's number is 382-3131, remember.

The Turgoose Terrace home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lee not only has a wonderful setting, it also has friendly neighbors, such as the sprightly pup that greeted committee members, Mrs. E. L. Jones, left, and Mrs. R. L. Horne when they made a pre-tour call. (Photos by Bill Halkett.)

THREE HOMES TO BE SEEN

Island Scenery Sets Backdrop for Tour

By PAT DUFOUR

Officially it's a house tour, but Victorians and tourists who "take in" the annual affair, arranged by the Women's Committee to the Greater Victoria Art Gallery for Saturday, May 15, will be treated to an afternoon of some of the area's most attractive scenery.

Taking a pre-tour run this week, I couldn't help but feel that the committee had summer days and warm July evenings on their minds when they chose this year's three houses—each is designed and built for outdoor living.

First on my list was "Bradley Dyne," home of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Parrott at 9620 Ardmore Drive. (Those who have already bought their tickets should note that it's listed wrongly as 9260.)

This two-storey home overlooking Saanich Inlet is built on three acres bought 50 years ago by Mrs. Parrott's parents from the late Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Dyne. It has 350 feet of waterfront, attractively flanked by statuesque dogwood trees.

OUTDOOR BARBECUE

My first impulse was to dash to the store to buy some steaks with which to try the outdoor barbecue which centres a spacious sun patio on the ground level.

These were a family project and Mrs. Parrott says, "They were well worth every brick we laid."

Truly a family home, perfect for the every-changing needs of the three younger Parrotts, Brock, four; Brian, 10 and 16-year-old Sherry, the house was an adaptation of plans which Mr. and Mrs. Parrott discovered in a Better Homes and Gardens Magazine. The lower floor has a rumpus room which all parents of teen-aged children can appreciate. Its double fireplace is planned for barbecue cooking, the glass doors seem to bring the outdoors inside and the roller piano is an irresistible temptation at youthful parties.

HINT OF OLD WORLD

The outside of the house blends with its surroundings, being of rough cedar, painted a soft green. Woods also add to the interior. The kitchen's cabinets are of Japanese sen, clothes closets hint of the "old world," being of wooden slats and beamed ceilings add an extra touch of warmth.

A huge granite fireplace dominates the 32-foot living room. Four bedrooms and three bathrooms ensure comfortable, uncrowded family living.

Another home included in the tour also relies on Saanich Inlet for most of its scenic setting although a well-kept farm and rolling fields add their own backdrop. It's the spacious home of Mrs. W. C. Woodward, widow of the former lieutenant-governor, and is to be seen at 7764 West Saanich Road.

DI CASTRI DESIGN

Third on the list is the newly built home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lee. This house is the creation of local architect, John A. Di Castri, and contains many of the breathtakingly beautiful innovations that have made Di Castri buildings some of our city's most attractive assets.

Here again, seascapes add to the decor. The home, situated at 8012 Turgoose Terrace, has windows that look out over the water to James Island and Sidney Spit.

A special feature of the house is an open stairwell which runs through both of the house's levels, culminating in a rock garden on the lower floor.

DREAM 'ISLAND'

The kitchen is the epitome of any woman's dreams, having a central "island," with doors opening to a work area, dish storage, canned goods storage and an up-to-date housewife's office.

The lower-level is built with house guests in mind, with its own self-contained kitchen and living room.

All three homes are fine examples of the individuality that has given western architecture a top position on Canada's architectural scene.

The tour begins at 2 p.m. and ends at 5 p.m. Buses will leave the gallery at 1:30 p.m. Women are asked not to wear spike heels. No children under 14 will be allowed on the tour.

Of Personal Interest

Off to Portland

Several members of the Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild will travel to Portland to attend the second Pacific Northwest Weavers' Conference to be held in the Oregon city from May 21 to May 23. Planning to attend are Mrs. H. L. Gonnason, Mrs. B. C. Ryan, Mrs. H. C. Harshorne, Mrs. O. L. Stanton, Mrs. S. Pickles, Mrs. G. L. Robertson, Mrs. W. C. Winkel and Mrs. George Anstey.

Wed In Montreal

Of interest in Victoria is the recent marriage in St. James' United Church, Montreal, of Mrs. Beatrice Caulfield, Montreal, and Mr. Terry Patrick Jones, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones of Colville Road, Victoria. The groom attended Esquimalt High School and Victoria High School. The newlyweds are now making their home at 4270 Sir George Simpson, Lachine, Que.

Visit Orient

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bassett returned to Victoria on Tuesday after a six-week visit to Japan. The couple left here in late March aboard the P and O Liner Ss. Oronsay. Dr. Bassett attended a meeting of the Pan Pacific Medical Association in Tokyo. Then, Dr. and Mrs. Bassett toured Japan.

Confederation '67 Means Another Upsurge As It Did 100 Years Ago for Canada

If Canadians have the same sort of spirit, determination and sense of rationalization in 1967 as their forefathers had on entering Confederation in 1867, Canada will be able to look forward to another great upsurge in its next 100 years.

This was stated by Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, speaking at the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Ireland emphasized the tremendous parallel in 1965 to that which existed 100 years ago so far as the question of a true united Canada was concerned. "The state of population, economics and legislation is very different today, but the basis of uniting the provinces in goodwill has not changed," he said.

B.C.'s DIFFICULTIES

In outlining the situation British Columbia was in, prior to entering Confederation, Mr. Ireland explained, "Naturally it was one of difficulty. First of all, British Columbia was still administered by the Crown in the form of colonies. Then there was the problem of setting up a responsible government. This was almost impossible as there was no one experienced in legislation."

The speaker gave Sir James Douglas as an example. "Here was a man who left his native Scotland at the age of 15, and since that time had been in a colony receiving his orders from Britain. How then, could he be expected to establish a responsible government in British Columbia?"

Mr. Ireland said that it would have been little short of tragic if British Columbia had entered Confederation in 1867.

JOINED IN 1871

"We were not prepared because of the lack of experience. Finally, in 1871, with Sir Richard McBride, we entered in allegiance with the other provinces."

There did seem to be insurmountable problems to this joining. "First of all," said the speaker, "there was the lack of communication, as there was no link by road or rail to the rest of Canada."

The real difficulty was for the people (especially on Vancouver Island which had been a Crown colony for so long) to accept the new status of being Canadians after having been British. "But," quoted Mr. Ireland, "Dr. Helmecken said in a speech in the legislature—'England has given us nothing but a flag, maybe Canada can give us more.' The speaker quipped, 'It's taken Canada a long time, but we've got the flag!'"

Mr. Ireland was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Forbes, president, and thanked by Mrs. Charles Smith.

Officers named for the coming year include Mrs. Fred M. Corbett, past president; Miss Forbes, president; Mrs. H. H. Youson, first vice-president; Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell, second; Mrs. R. T. Wallace, third; Miss Jessie M. Gordon, honorary secretary; Mrs. John H. Brown, honorary treasurer; Mrs. Frank Mack, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Alfred B. Young, historian.

Committee members include Mrs. H. J. Damaské, Mrs. T. C. Evans, Mrs. Dai MacLeod, Mrs. W. Davenport, Mrs. T. C. Hamilton, Mrs. C. L. Smith and Mrs. A. S. Stringer.

A corsage was presented to Miss Mary Ashworth, pianist, by Miss Forbes.

Secretary's report was given by Mrs. T. C. Cowley. Mrs. Brown, treasurer, reported that a total of $2,058.69 was the balance in the bank after the year's expenses.

This Week at Gordon Ellis

The New Look in Swimsuits

Now, while stocks are complete, is the time to consider your Summer beach and swim wear wardrobe.

This season's styles are new, exciting and yet easy to wear. They are all here at Gordon Ellis Limited.

Ranging through the classic semi-skirted sheath, the "little-boy" leg, the ever popular maillot, and the fishnet blouson, to the super glamorous netted one-piece bikini, there is a style for every occasion and for every figure, in both one and two-piece styles.

Materials run the gamut from nylon organdy lace over broadcloth to Helanca and Lycra.

Many of the styles shown are exclusive to Gordon Ellis Limited in Victoria. Representing the very best selected from designers in Sweden, Denmark, West Germany, Italy and the pick of Canadian lines, these are garments that may be worn with comfort and confidence.

DEAR ABBY...

Strictly Business!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is 26, attractive and extremely well-educated. She confided that she's agreed to marry a 39-year-old, foreign-born man who wants to stay in this country longer than he otherwise could, for business reasons. In return for this favor, the man has promised to give my friend a trip to Paris. After this foreigner finishes his business in this country, they plan to get a quick Mexican divorce. Neither this man nor my girl friend has ever been married. I have tried to talk her out of it, but she insists on going through with it. How can I bring her to her senses? Sign me, "MITZI".

DEAR "MITZI": You probably can't but, try, anyway. This isn't a marriage, it's a business deal. And I'm not so sure it's legal. Encourage your friend to "confide" in a lawyer. She might discover (with his help) the cheapest way to get a trip to Paris is to buy her own ticket.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of a schoolteacher who keeps the whole class after school for 30 minutes because one of the children did something wrong, and she didn't know which one it was. Several mothers (including myself) had to sit outside in their cars and wait for their children to come out. Daughter had an appointment with an eye doctor, and because she was late she was put at the bottom of the list and had to wait an hour and a half to see him. I think this teacher ought to be fired. Don't use my name if you use this letter. She would take it out on my daughter.

UP IN ARMS
DEAR UP: I don't subscribe to punishing the innocent in order to make sure the guilty gets what's coming to him. Talk to the teacher first and get her side of it.

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to go on living, but taking one's life is a sin against God, so what can I do? My husband was very sick and thought he was going to die. He called me to his bedside and said he didn't want to die with anything on his conscience, so he made a full confession of his sins to me. I told him he didn't have to, but he did, anyway. He confessed that over three years ago he had been unfaithful to me with my youngest sister, and before that with my dearest friend. There were others, too, but these hurt me the most. Well, he didn't die, and now I cannot look my dear sister in the face. And I don't care to see my best friend again. They know something is wrong but I can't bring myself to tell them. How can I get over this terrible hurt, Abby?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Don't permit yourself to dwell on these morbid thoughts. Try to think constructively and positively, and pray for strength, compassion and the grace to forgive. You can bury the past under interests of the present and hopes for the future—if you really try.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer.

TO PRESS SATIN

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I'm going to be sewing on satin, what is the best way to press it? Also, is there any way to let out seams without the stitches showing forever?

Mrs. LeR. Wee

Dear Mrs. LeR. W.: Don't use moisture on satin. Press with a warm iron on the WRONG side of your fabric. If you are pressing over edge-basting, be sure the basting is done with silk thread so it won't mark the satin.

With satin it is almost impossible to change seams and hems after the material has been pressed and worn. The stitches will probably never come out completely. If anyone has had good luck removing the stitch marks, let us know about it.

NEW FOOD PRODUCTS

Cottage Cheese and Turnips Are 'Guinea Pigs'

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal Food Research Institute has developed dehydrated food products that prove good things to eat come in convenient, little packages. And they keep much longer.

On display at an institute open house are packages of flaky turnip with the bulk of the water removed by a drum-drying process.

These and other products such as dehydrated potato mixes and frozen-dried cottage cheese were developed by the three-year-old agency's processing section. They might one day find their way to the commercial market.

Dr. N. W. Tape, the section head, said Wednesday a three-ounce package of dehydrated turnip would produce about eight servings for a meal. The housewife just adds water and butter and whips it up into a mash for heating.

Frozen-dried cottage cheese, which Dr. Tape terms a "first-class product"—can be kept on a shelf for a year before use. The housewife just adds water.

Fresh cottage cheese lasts a week or less.

The big problem in the dehydrating process is to keep the original flavor and quality. "You cannot keep it all in," he said. "But you keep as much as possible."

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"You writing a note to the milkman or trying for a Nobel Prize in literature?"

TODAY'S RECIPE

Chocolate Slices

Eight cups corn flakes or 2 cups corn flake crumbs, ½ cup soft butter or margarine, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup cocoa, 1 egg

BE SMART—

If we could have chosen gloves to order for summer, we could not have dreamed of anything more wonderful than stretch nylon, the fit would be so great. We show one for late day: an eight-button all nylon with snap-off petal cuff. Austere or fancy.

(slightly beaten), 1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring, 1 cup shredded or flaked coconut, ½ cup chopped nuts, ¼ cup soft butter or margarine, 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring and 2 tablespoons milk.

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Combine butter, sugar, cocoa, egg and vanilla in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture is well-blended and slightly thickened. Remove from heat. Add coconut, nuts and corn flake crumbs; mix well. Press into ungreased 8x8-inch pan. Chill. Beat butter until fluffy; add sugar gradually, beating until well-blended. Stir in vanilla and just enough milk so that mixture will spread easily. Spread over cocoa layer. Chill. Cover with chocolate glaze; let stand until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Yield: 25 1½-in. squares.

Chocolate Glaze
Two squares (2-oz.) unsweetened chocolate, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
Melt chocolate with butter in heavy saucepan over very low heat or over hot but not boiling water; mix well. Spread over vanilla layer of chocolate slices.

Prolonged applause followed a choral concert at Oak Bay Junior High Wednesday.

One Hundred Voices in Song—a presentation combining the Arion Choir, Rotary Boys' Choir and Gladys Pearcey Studio Choir, drew a large audience. And the selections appeared to please everyone present.

Religious music was highlighted by Handel's Praise to Thee, presented by the joined voices of the Arion and Rotary Choirs, followed with The Lord Is My Shepherd.

The Rotary Boys also sang Franck's O Lord Most Holy.

Then in a rollicking change of pace they set the audience tapping with the sea chanty We'll Rant and We'll Roar (Like True Newfoundlanders).

Bob Hall and Bill Ritchie, soloists, offered Fincula, Funicula and the Admiral's Song from HMS Pinafore, respectively, and capably.

The 15-voice Gladys Pearcey Studio Choir sang four choices and the audience demanded an encore.

Concert chairman James McVie also was a soloist with the Arion Choir which now is in its 73rd season.

Mrs. Helen McVie was accompanist, Frank Tupman led the Arion Choir and William Hastings the Rotary singers.

City Man Hurt, Car Demolished

A city man is in good condition today after escaping serious injury early Tuesday when his car plunged off the Trans-Canada Highway near Mill Bay.

Gordon Cockroft, 985 Avriell St., was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for abrasions and a fractured elbow.

He was driving north at 2:20 a.m. when he apparently lost control of his car, Shawnigan RCMP said.

The vehicle left the road and scraped along a ditch on the west side of the highway.

The doors on the passenger side were torn off.

Police found Cockroft lying in the ditch when they arrived on the scene.

He was able to walk but was taken to hospital by ambulance for a check-up.

The car was described by police as a write-off.

Ex-RAF Group To Hold Reunion

Ex-RAF Patricia Bay detachment personnel will celebrate their annual reunion Saturday, May 29, at 7 p.m. at the Pacific Club.

The airmen are veterans from the Royal Air Force operational training unit stationed here from 1941 to 1943. Many hundreds returned to Canada's West Coast after the war.

The evening will feature Jerry Goaley's Smile Show which originated as an RAF camp show 24 years ago.

In charge of the arrangements for the dinner-dance is Dave Jones, 1680 Earle Street, telephone EV 2-0952.

TEEN-AGERS Melinda Marx, seated, 18-year-old daughter of comedian Groucho Marx, and Peggy Lipton, also 18, pose in Santa Monica, Calif., today after winning court approval for singing and acting contracts. Miss Marx was told to invest 25 per cent of her royalties in savings bonds and Miss Lipton 30 per cent of her earnings.

Scouts, Cubs Display Skills at Mass Rally

It was a sight to warm the heart of any outdoors enthusiast—500 Cubs and Scouts going through their paces at a mass rally Sunday afternoon.

Baden-Powell himself would have been proud.

Gathered in a large field at Burnside and Tillikum, boys from the Douglas district Cub and Scout groups showed off a variety of outdoor skills to parents and friends.

With activities ranging from bridge-building to jungle dancing the youngsters competed in the affair which officials hope will become an annual event.

While the older scouts did more difficult work, Cub packs competed in leap-frog, jungle dancing, balancing and singing.

They were also judged on knowledge of highway safety rules, compass work, first aid and telling time.

Fifth and second Scout troops meanwhile went to work on a first aid station, flag pole and a signal tower where they demonstrated communications techniques.

Tents and camping equipment were displayed by the Seventh Troop while boys of the Fourth Troop built a kitchen complete with cupboard and shelves constructed of branches.

Show-stealer was a rope suspension bridge built by the first Troop and slung over Colquitz Creek.

ERECTED BRIDGE

The same troop erected a transport bridge to be pushed across the stream with poles, and produced home-made cookies over their campfire.

Boys formed two large circles for the grand bowl and flag lowering at the rally's end.

Eleven judges will decide winners of the affair to be announced at a fall Cub and Scout gathering.

'LEGALIZE'

Homosexual Practices

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury joined other members of the House of Lords Wednesday in urging the legalization of homosexual practices between adult males.

The archbishop, Dr. A. M. Ramsey, is head of the Church of England.

"Just as fornication is always wrong, so homosexual acts are always wrong," he told the Lords.

"But wrong acts in this case, as in others, can have various degrees of culpability attaching to them.

"I think the case for altering the law in respect of homosexual acts between consenting adults in private rests on reason and justice."

The archbishop spoke during a debate on a report by a government-sponsored vice-investigating group known as the Wolfenden committee.

The committee recommended a number of changes in the vice laws, including an easing of legal restrictions on homosexual practices.

Band Playing

In Vancouver

HMCS Naden's 48-man band is currently playing a series of concerts in Vancouver high schools.

A naval spokesman today estimated the bandmen will have played to more than 6,000 students before they return here Saturday.

Film on U.K. History

The last in a series of films on the world around us will be presented at the Oak Bay Junior High School Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m.

The film, There'll Always Be an England, is sponsored by the adult education division of the Greater Victoria School Board.

Narrating the film will be Dr. Charles Forbes Taylor. His color-motion picture retraces the history of England from the Druid ceremonies at Stonehenge to the ultra-modern London skyscrapers.

'I'M GUILTY' MD ADMITS

TORONTO (CP)—The head of obstetrics and gynaecology at the University of Toronto says he's an "unconvicted but habitual criminal" by ignoring federal law on birth control and giving advice on contraception. Dr. Douglas Cannell also told a seminar of the Ontario Welfare Council that most doctors and hospitals in Metropolitan Toronto are guilty of the same offence.

N-Advances 'Tremendous'

QUEBEC (CP)—Nuclear experts agree the world will face a severe power shortage in the next 20 years but they are not sure just how much of the increased demand will be supplied by atomic power.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Nuclear Association closed here Wednesday with a forecast of "tremendous advances" in nuclear technology by Dr. B. W. Lewis, vice-president in charge of science for Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

He said scientists were optimistic, "and what looks to be possible will be reality in a very short time."

But a paper predicting the world's nuclear capacity to 1985 said it would depend on local conditions whether nations switched to nuclear power or increased the supply of power from thermal plants burning fossil fuels like coal and oil.

H. B. Merlin, analytical engineer for Atomic Energy of Canada, said world demand for electric power would increase five times by 1985. Many developing nations with plentiful supplies of conventional fuels could meet this demand without going to nuclear power, while others would probably enter the nuclear field.

The final trend probably would be dictated by leading nations in certain regions of the world.

Dr. Lewis said Tuesday's announcement by Premier Lesage that Quebec was entering the nuclear field in 1973 was a "big step" forward. While Atomic Energy of Canada would build the station, engineers with Hydro-Quebec would gain experience necessary for further work.

SUPPLY DROP KILLS GIRL

SUVA, Fiji (AP)—A 10-year-old girl was killed when a package dropped from a plane hit her at Butaritari, near Tarawa, in the Gilbert Islands. The plane was dropping supplies to American personnel conducting a geodetic survey of island groups. One package fell through the roof of a house and struck the child.

Smoking 'Worst Hazard'

OTTAWA (CP)—Cigarette smoking was branded as the world's major health hazard here Wednesday as 75 Canadian teen-agers were confronted with a doctor's blunt argument about the relationship between lung cancer and smoking.

Dr. Norman C. Delarue, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto who has been accumulating evidence against cigarettes for almost 20 years, spoke at the opening session of the Canadian Youth Conference on smoking and health at Carleton University.

Dr. Delarue urged them to consider that:

More people die in North America every year from smoking than in traffic accidents. Doctors believe as many as 250,000 people may be dying every year from lung cancer.

Out of every 100 persons who get lung cancer from smoking cigarettes, only five will be cured. The rest will die.

The death rate for smokers is 30 to 50 times higher than that of non-smokers.

If they continue their present smoking habits, 1,000,000 North American teen-agers will die before age 70.

Good news for the man who's over 40 and concerned about his health

When you're over 40 you begin to realize that good health may not always be yours. If you're wise you make the necessary adjustments—you enjoy life, but you don't overtax yourself.

Life insurance suddenly becomes more important, too. You want to make sure that all the gaps are plugged, now.

But uncertain health could make life insurance difficult to buy—more costly. Who can help you? I think Manufacturers Life probably can. We believe life insurance should be available to as wide a group of people as possible—including people with coronaries, high blood pressure, or ulcers, for example—at lowest possible cost. In fact, our company was the first to offer life insurance to men and women with diabetes.

If you are under 80 and worried about your life insurance because you are worried about your health, give me a call. I'll review your present insurance and show you how Manufacturers Life may be able to plug any gaps there are in it—without placing you under any obligation.

Columbines
Well Liked
For Color

By JACK BEASTALL

Columbines have found a warm spot in the hearts of gardeners for generations. The earliest horticultural writers mention them in the fondest
terms.

Even their botanical and common names are intriguing to the imaginative
gardener.

The common name of Columbine could have originated because the spurs of the flowers suggested caps worn by court jesters (columbines).

Or it may have been the interest in an Indian peace plan for Viet Nam and is encouraging
New Delhi to press for wider support of the proposal.

The botanical name, Aquilegia (ak-wi-leej'-ah), could be from aquilegia, to draw water, since many of the species grow in rock crevices and on shale, drawing their water from under-ground streams. Or from aquila, the eagle, whose talons the spurs resemble.

Popular today, especially with beginners, are the bicolor long-spurred hybrids of comparatively recent origin.

These, in blending and contrasting colors, have long spurs extending behind the blossoms and their faces, raised to the sun, display their full beauty.

Yet it is the low growing, 12-inch species columbine, Aquilegia alpina, that is giving me pleasure at the moment.

Bashfully hiding its beauty from those who fail to tilt its nodding blooms, it freely distributes the ring of "feeding doves."

When raised with a gentle finger, the sepals are deep blue and the flower petals lighter, almost grey-blue.

Its coy, but delightful pose goes well among grey rocks, and its behaviour is well suited to the decorum of other alpine plants in the rockery.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Dorothy Malone, bitter after the divorce and custody battle she had with Jacques Bergerac, is finding solace in the attentions of wealthy Bill Holmes. Bill's brother, Chris, has a similar eye for beautiful ladies of the movies—he has recently married to Ariane Dahl. Eve Johnson has retained another lawyer in her attempt to get a larger financial settlement from ex-husband Van Johnson. Is this a record? A London firm has chartered the Queen Mary for a private party this Christmas. That's what you might call really "cruising". Philip Van Rensselaer's book about society ("House With the Golden Door")—which was halted in mid-publication to dodge possible libel suits—has undergone some name changes and will be issued to the bookshelves. One of the "showplace" hotels in Miami Beach is said to be for sale if some loaded buyer comes up with a sum in the neighborhood of $35,000,000. The police crackdown on bookmakers in Manhattan has forced many of them to change their locations to Westchester. Almost every phone call to a bookie these days starts with "a code 914". The banning of Sherry Britton's appearance at the World's Fair may wind up in a court case that the cheesecake photographers will absolutely love.

Word received here is that the Fredric March-Florence Eldridge readings in Athens, sponsored by the state department, were sold out almost as quickly as Vladimir Horowitz's return to Carnegie Hall. However, you can bet that the tickets were a lot cheaper. "The Day After Tomorrow" has taken a small tumble. The giant multi-million-dollar production, set to roll next week, has been postponed. After billing it as the most expensive production ever filmed in the United States—$12,000,000 for starters—they've shoved the shooting date up to "sometime in 1966."

Carol Lynley's chums are convinced she'll marry Robin French before the end of the year, and they're delighted, because they've never seen her so happy or so in love. He's also a big favorite with Carol's three-year-old daughter by press agent Mike Selman. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Hugh French, agent for Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton. The recent ex-husband of one of the nation's biggest stars isn't being very gallant about it—telling everyone what he calls "the real reason" for the split. A gentleman would let the lady do the explaining, if any. . . . Johnny Mathis has to take a rest after much too much hard work. He collapsed at Blinstrub's in Boston toward the end of his run there. Someone had booked him for a ridiculously long and arduous schedule of appearances that would have left him huskier than Johnny. . . . Jack Carter will play the role created by the late Paul Douglas in "Born Yesterday" on the summer stock circuit.

You'd never guess—well, maybe you would!—which noted Hollywood star owns an ultra-modern still and has concocted a powerful brand of whisky such as no one ever has tasted before. He gives a bottle or two to pals as presents, and they cherish it more than any rare wine.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Hospital Caters To Teen-Agers

By JACK HUTTON

A new deal is underway for young Canadian adults in a hospital already under construction in St. James, a suburb of Winnipeg.

The $6.5 million hospital will be the first in Canada to set up a ward exclusively for patients in the teen-age category. No one else is allowed in.

The idea isn't new in the U.S. (You'll find hot dogs and hamburgers on some of their hospital menus), but I believe this is the first time in Canada anyone has tried this long overdue concept.

Brig. Muriel Everett, administrator of Salvation Army Grace Hospital in Winnipeg, will be in charge of the new hospital when it opens in the spring of 1966. I find her views both exciting and intriguing.

Forgotten Group

Teen-agers, she says, are the forgotten people of hospitals. A 16-year-old patient is too old to adjust well in a pediatric ward but also uncomfortable in the company of older patients—particularly those who enjoy talking about operations.

"Psychologically, it's bad for the teen-ager," she declares. "They have no companionship with babies, and the conversation of older patients, who often talk about their operations in gory detail, can have a harmful effect."

The plans are the result of a unique partnership between hospital administrators familiar with the needs of young adults and the architectural firm, Green, Blankstein Russell Associates of Winnipeg.

According to D. R. Marshall, chief architect in his firm's hospital department, the special ward will have 20 standard rooms with facilities similar to those you'd find in adult sections of any hospital.

The comparison stops there. Because the young adult patients will have their own dining room and day room combined, a place where they can enjoy meals, play games, listen to records (are the Rolling Stones good therapy?) or watch television together.

Lots of Noise

Brig. Everett hopes the staff for this ward will be specially attuned to working with young people—perhaps able to stand plenty of noise—and more familiar with their problems than the average nurse or doctor.

The experimental ward, says Brig. Everett, hopes to produce to main benefits now lacking in most larger hospitals.

"Being together," she says, "teen-agers will have pleasant and helpful companionship and this will hasten their recovery."

"Secondly, some teen-agers now leave hospital and look back on their stay as something unpleasant. They will be reluctant to return, but this attitude should change if the memory of their stay is a happy one."

Rules and regulations are still being written. But boys and girls in the special ward will have special freedom to mix freely and visit back and forth. Each room will have one to four patients.

Teacher

Brig. Everett is hopeful of providing a visiting teacher for students who have to remain in hospital a long time. With luck, no student should have to fall far behind his or her classmates.

A small handful of hospitals across Canada cater specifically to the needs of younger patients. But the maximum age they will admit is 15. A 16-year-old or 17-year-old goes into a regular adult hospital.

The new Salvation Army Grace Hospital in St. James is pioneering a new approach for the "forgotten people" of the teen years. How long, I wonder, before it spreads elsewhere in Canada.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

In there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ricky Lee O'Kelley, age 12, of Candier, N.C., for his question:

What is mica?
Almost every young person enjoys a period of rock collecting. He finds hidden qualities and beauties in his mineral collection, and this appreciation stays with him throughout his life. But mica is so outstanding that it captivates even those who have never noticed a mineral.

No rock hound is surprised to find a sample of mica in or on the ground. But someone who has never assembled a rock collection tends to be astounded. He feels certain that the flat, glassy specimen is an artificial substance dropped there perhaps by accident. He is positive that its paper-thin layers are pressed together from some man-made plastic. But the person who has reaped the rewards of rock collecting knows that this amateur is wrong.

A sample of mica may look like a fragment from a broken sheet of glass. It may be clear or tinted with yellow, dirty brown, pale violet or smoky black. It feels waxy to the touch, and its pliable, paper-thin layers are pressed together like the pages of a book. It is easy to separate them with a knife. This quality is called basal cleavage. To an expert cleavage is the natural pattern in which a rock or mineral breaks apart, and cleavage is one of his tests for identifying his mineral samples.

Used In Radar
Mica is a silicate mineral. It contains the chemical compound silica which is composed of molecules made from atoms of silicon and oxygen. Mica also contains oxides of aluminum, water and one or more other chemicals. It occurs in flat layers called books, in shiny flakes, in lumpy masses or in specks of stary dust embedded within darker rocks. It is found in igneous rocks such as granite or in metamorphic rocks such as schist.

The wonderful mineral is an insulator that keeps heat in or out. It has a high electrical resistance, and some of it is clear enough to be transparent. In the past clear mica was used for windowpanes, and the heat-proof mineral still is used to make peepholes in furnace doors. As an insulator it performs useful duties in irons and toasters. Because of its electrical resistance it is used in radar equipment, ion counters, fuses and even space missiles. Pieces of natural mica are used in transmitters, transformers, condensers, spark plugs and countless other gadgets.

Sizable deposits of mica are mined in the United States, but not enough to supply our industrial needs. When supplies from abroad were threatened in the last big war chemists tried to make synthetic mica. They have not succeeded in making a perfect copy of the natural mineral. But now many of mica's industrial duties are performed by marvelous new glasses and ceramics.

Log Truck Rate Set By Council

NORTH COWICHAN — The municipal council Wednesday set up a new charge of 50 cents per 1,000 board feet for logging trucks hauling loads over roads built by woodlot operators.

Last year council leased most of its forest holdings to 10 private small logging companies.

First to be affected by the new levy is Goldstream Logging Company which is logging on Mount Tzouhalem.

Part of its access to the Indian land is across a woodlot. Although he voted for the new levy, Coun. George Whittaker said he wished it recorded that a toll charge was not creating a precedent to be followed later.

He said he was particularly concerned about cases which would arise when Maple Bay peninsula was opened up for development.

Acting Reeve Dennis Hogan said the company should pay if it hauled logs from an area outside the municipality.

The woodlot operators built and maintained the road and should get compensation for its use by another logging firm.

Private companies levy a charge of $1.25 per 1,000 board feet for log hauling over their private roads.

Seventy-five persons voted in favor of the expenditure, 40 voted against and three ballots were spoiled.

WANDERING COUGAR GETS COOL GREETING

A cougar paid a social call Wednesday on a Victoria man at his Shawnigan Lake summer home.

George Robinson, 3069 Henderson, was awakened by "a terrific racket" at 7:15 a.m. to see the six-foot animal about 20 feet away from the house.

The cougar, apparently undisturbed by his cool reception, turned tail and ambled off down the road.

NO TRAFFIC PROBLEM worries Winter Harbor residents, as there is only one truck and this only road goes 100 yards from dock to the school. (Donahue Photo.)

REMOTE HIDEAWAY

Only Civilization Link Is Mail-Grocery Barge

Times reporter Bob Donahue last week cruised around Vancouver Island with a group of University of Victoria, ocean researchers aboard the R.C.N.'s auxiliary vessel Whitethroat.

Here is his third report.

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Staff Reporter

WINTER HARBOR—It's the last outpost of civilization on the west coast of Vancouver Island—and you better believe it.

Civilization greets Winter Harbor's hardy fishermen and their wives only once every two weeks when a commercial barge delivers their groceries, supplies and mail.

Not long ago the barge was stopping once a week, but recently the service was cut to twice a month.

"That's a long time to wait for mail," says "Big Lou" Agistino, who moved here from Toronto 17 years ago to get out of the rat race. He has done that.

There is a petition circulating among the eight permanent families asking that the barge service be increased again. But they wonder how much weight a petition of eight names will carry.

The situation is not all black for the residents of this remote hideaway near the northern tip of V.I.

They can always call for a charter aircraft to take them "out," but that costs precious dollars.

It becomes necessary, however, if you need eyeglasses, a dentist or a doctor.

Traffic congestion is not likely to be a problem here for some time—for the 100 yards of roadway there is only one truck.

The vehicle was brought in by barge to carry supplies from the dock to the site of a new school house which was built recently for the 14 elementary and junior high school students who live there.

And that's another thing that is causing some concern. There are no students eligible for high school now, but when it happens they will have to be sent to a boarding school in Port Hardy on the east coast of the Island.

They will tell you this story in Winter Harbor, but if you ask any of them why they don't leave if it is so bad, they will look amazed and say:

"Why would I want to do that?"

Next: A look at the Island's east coast.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Pat Bay Route Underpass Considered by Minister

Highways minister P. A. Gagliardi today said he will give "serious study" to a Sidney Village request for one underpass and two overpasses on the Patricia Bay Highway.

He said a full analysis of the need, engineering and costs will be needed before a decision can be made "but if it is necessary, it will be done."

He was referring to a $500,000 program proposed to his department by a Sidney delegation headed by village commission chairman A. A. Cormack.

The village group asked for an underpass across the highway at Beacon Avenue, Sidney's main street, and for overpasses north and south of it at Mills Road and Weiler Road.

"My assistant has presented their case to me and I'm looking at it," Mr. Gagliardi said. "I have to investigate and give it serious study on such things as the costs and all the facts."

"I have no idea how long this will take but if it (the proposal) is necessary, it will be done."

DUNCAN—B.C. Lions quarterback Joe Kapp will spark a fund drive for Cowichan Minor Football Association here Friday night.

He will speak and show a film of the Lions 1964 Grey Cup victory at the association's booster night program at 8 p.m. in the Eagles' Hall.

Dancing will follow the banquet, when the star quarterback will receive a Cowichan Indian sweater.

The event is one of the final money-making attempts by the association to purchase equipment to enter the Island juvenile league next season.

Saturday, Kapp will be the guest at a civic luncheon in the Tzouhalem Hotel for civic and service club officials.

So far, $2,000 of the $3,500 needed to equip a team has already been raised.

Duncan Short Of New Flags

DUNCAN—A supply shortage was the reason given Tuesday for district schools not flying Canada's new maple leaf flag.

Cowichan School Board secretary Geoff Dyson said the new emblems are being distributed by the education department's textbook section.

Cowichan schools' tardiness in flying the flag last week came under criticism from an Ottawa visitor.

LAKE COWICHAN—Operation Doorstep, the mobile TB testing unit, will reach here May 27 to 29.

Officials told the council at a meeting they hope to process 500 people a day with tuberculin skin tests and X-rays.

Local PTAs will assist by providing 30 volunteer workers per day.

***

DUNCAN—George Smith, assistant postmaster here for the past three years, has been transferred to a similar post at Penticton.

His successor has not been appointed.

Postal clerk Ron Smilie, who has worked here for the past 15 years, has been appointed assistant postmaster at Castlegar.

***

DUNCAN—A Jersey cow owned by John C. Walker of Duncan, established a milk production record for the year ending April. It was announced today by the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club.

In the senior four-year-old class, Frontier Joanne AP, produced in 305 days a total of 10,768 lbs. of milk, plus 55½ pounds of butter fat.

WAR CANOE RACES TOP SPORT SHOW

DUNCAN—Indian war canoe races will be the highlight of the Corpus Christi Indian sports competitions Saturday and Sunday.

So far 11 eleven-man canoes have been entered from Nanaimo, Cowichan, Kuper Island, North Vancouver, Chilliwack and Lummi, Wash.

The Kuper Island Indian band will lead a procession following Sunday morning mass in St. Ann's Catholic Church on Tzouhalem Road.

Field sports will be held Sunday morning at Somenos Park, near Duncan armories. Canoe races will be held at Quamichan Lake during the afternoon.

Sports day organizer Father Rossiter said field events Saturday will be open to both Indian and white children.

Air Service Set To Gold River

OTTAWA (CP)—Award-of-a licence to B.C. Air Lines to extend its Vancouver-based commercial air service to Gold River, B.C., has been announced by the air transport board.

The firm had sought a protected base at Gold River to give it a monopoly on air traffic there but the board limited this protection to Gold River-Vancouver traffic.

Gold River is the site of a major pulp mill development.

Greenhouse Zone Urged in Saanich

Provincial horticulturist Charles Carter today urged the creation of specific greenhouse zones in rural Saanich to protect the growing agricultural industry.

The industry, with a potential value of more than $5,000,000, is in danger of being pushed out of Saanich Peninsula by housing developments and rising land values, he said.

"In the past few years several have been crowded out by housing developments," he said. "Unless municipalities take steps to zone special areas for greenhouses we are going to lose a valuable industry."

The industry today, he pointed out, provides employment for about 500 people, plus temporary and casual employment for many more.

"There are few industries in Victoria which can boast of such a large labor force," he said.

Mr. Carter predicted the industry will be double in size in a few years if land is available in rural Saanich to permit expansion.

"It will expand in line with the population growth," he said. "As it is now, all our greenhouse vegetables are earmarked for the local market. We even have to import some from the outside."

Nursery stock, such as flowers and shrubs, he said, is not only being grown for local needs but for export to the United States.

He felt few people are aware of the extent and economic value of the industry.

QUILL AWARD winner for 1965 is Andre Laurendeau, co-chairman of the Royal Commission on Biculturalism and Bilingualism and editor of Montreal's Le Devoir. The award, by the Windsor Men's Press Club, is for "outstanding contributions to the flow of public information on Canadian affairs."

Appeal for Indians In Brief Before B-B

VANCOUVER (CP)—Justice and equality for Indians is demanded in a brief to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.).

It says: "Canadian Indians are shamefully discriminated against and compelled to live in poverty, squalor and often without hope. 'Jobs and income opportunities for them are very limited.'"

The British Columbia union, whose membership of 8,000 includes many Indians, says the proposed federal Indian claims commission should compensate tribes in cash and land for the white man's injustices and breaches of faith.

The commission might consider giving the Queen Charlotte Islands back to the Haidas, for instance.

The brief argues against any deadline for filing historic Indian claims and says the awards of the proposed commission should be subject to appeals to the United Nations or an international court.

The union also recommends subsidized housing, promotion of secondary industries and improved education on reserves.

It calls for an end to discrimination against Indians in employment and welfare services.

The brief advocates a constituent assembly by 1967 to write a new constitution that would recognize two equal nations, one English-speaking and the other French-speaking. The two language groups would have equal representation in the federal Parliament and each nation would have the constitutional right to secede.

FIRMS BARRICADE DOORS

Prison Charge 'Ridiculous'

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Nanaimo businessmen say they are using barricades and police dogs to protect their properties against escapees from Brannen Lake School, a minimum security prison for youths.

In the face of three break-ins in a row, Jim Bonar of Bastion Distributors has barricaded his wholesale house from roof to cellar. Thick solid wood protects the front door and all windows are plugged.

Two other businesses have engaged police dogs following a series of five break-ins.

Others told the Times in an interview, they are taking similar measures against what is described as "scandalous willful damage by soon-to-be-released inmates from Brannen Lake School."

The claim is that shortly before their release, the boys go AWOL, rampage and ransack the neighborhood and simply wait next to the evidence to be picked up by the law.

"They just don't want to leave the school," Mr. Bonar says.

Mr. Bonar says that "this has also become quite a little game." He says the boys compete to see who can steal the most and get away the farthest for the longest time.

"The boy with the 'best' record in that achievement becomes 'quite a hero at the school,' he says.

On one occasion the thieves stole $400. On another their loot consisted of 10,000 rounds of ammunition, many guns, axes, lanterns and knives.

"Way of entry was usually quite simple," Mr. Bonar says. "They just threw a rock through the front window."

Mr. Bonar said that these assaults are general knowledge in Nanaimo. The victims are within two miles of the school.

Fred Hassard, superintendent of the school, described these claims only as "grossly exaggerated."

He says Bastion Distributors hasn't been ransacked since August, 1964.

"I know about Mr. Bonar's troubles," he says. "They occasioned quite a bit of comment last summer, but why build this up again eight months later?"

Mr. Hassard says that it is true the business was broken in three times over a two-month period.

"There were three boys involved, two of whom went in twice," he says. Two of the boys were "irresponsible" and have been transferred to a different type of institution, he says.

Mr. Hassard says reports of "hundreds of break-ins" are ridiculous.

The annual report for 1964 shows the school handled 650 boys (age 12 to 18) that year, with 76 individual boys going AWOL.

In 1963 the school worked with 583 juveniles with 62 individuals escaping.

"More than 75 per cent of these boys never break-in anywhere, they're just fed up and lonely and want to go home," Mr. Hassard says. He says the majority of escapees are caught on the school grounds.

"Of those who broke into properties not one boy said he did it to be able to remain here," Mr. Hassard says.

The superintendent says that there is an odd boy here and there who doesn't want to leave because he has no home to go to.

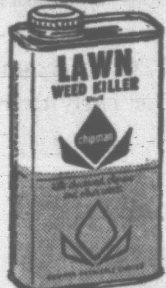

"Think about that," Mr. Hassard says. "These kids didn't have it as good at home as here — of their own admission."

"And don't forget that the kids are here because they did the same kind of offences in their home communities in the first place."

Pay Scale Hinders Hiring

Lack of a satisfactory salary scale has made it impossible to obtain another doctor for the Metropolitan Board of Health.

In his quarterly report the senior medical health officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, says at the present time the physicians are giving a considerable amount of overtime to ensure that essential services are still available.

The metro health board has been unable to obtain the services of another full-time physician since Dr. C. E. Mahaffy resigned last September.

The only full-time physicians now are Dr. Whitbread and his assistant, Dr. G. P. Evans.

In his report Dr. Whitbread pointed out "it is essential that before the end of the year a suitable public health physician be obtained for this position."

"We are looking forward to a year of marked improvements in the area, with the sincere hope that some of our problems, particularly those with regard to budgeting, staffing and programming, will be solved in order that we may become a close-knit, co-ordinated and integrated health board."

Nursing Home Ordered Closed By Health Board

One nursing home has been closed and another has been given definite orders to close as a result of a nursing home survey by the Metropolitan Board of Health.

Senior Medical Health Officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, said some of the conditions found in the homes which were ordered to close were poor buildings and facilities and overcrowding.

Dr. Whitbread said in most cases where faults were found action is being taken to rectify the conditions.

"It is considered that with a few minor exceptions, the elderly and chronically ill persons in the Greater Victoria area are receiving satisfactory care and attention in the licensed nursing and boarding homes," said Dr. Whitbread.

"In most of these institutions, the services and facilities have improved over the last few years and have reached a most satisfactory level."

Dr. Whitbread said a plan is being considered to make the services of a physiotherapist available in all nursing homes in the Greater Victoria area.

'Her Mother Was Told Car Killed Susan'

By JIM HUME

Sometime this week somebody has to tell Susan Freschi's mother how her daughter died. Locked in grief in a shaded room at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, Mrs. R. J. Freschi thinks Susan was killed by a car.

"We can't tell her how Susan died," Mrs. Earnshaw said this morning, tears staining her lined face. "She loved Susan so much her heart is breaking. Whatever we do we must keep from her the horrible way she died."

Quietly spoken, Mrs. Earnshaw is fighting a strong feeling of guilt that Susan's murder on Tuesday evening was her fault.

"For the first time in many, many months I went to town to see a movie. I shouldn't have gone, you know. I should have met Susan the way I always did when she took her riding lessons."

Sunlight dappled the green lawn beneath a weeping willow tree and the breeze rippled the water of a small ornamental pool in front of the Earnshaw home.

Mrs. Earnshaw looked across to the wood's where her niece's body was found Wednesday.

"I know it's silly, but I blame myself. I wanted to see 'Seance on a Wet Afternoon,' so when Susan telephoned a little after 6 to tell me she would be late, I told her I was going to the show and to go ahead and walk home."

Susan could have caught an earlier bus, but Tuesday evening volunteered to stay behind and clean the stables at the Victoria Riding Academy.

"She was like that," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Always helpful, always willing and so sensitive to the problems of other people. She was only 14 but, along with my daughter Felicity, she took a great interest in the civil rights struggle in the States. They knew every one of Pete Seeger's songs by heart. She used to sing 'We Shall Overcome.'"

"Felicity was 15 a week ago. We had a few girls from St. Ann's Academy out and they slept outside here on the lawn. It was a wonderful time and Susan enjoyed herself so much that day."

"She wasn't a Catholic, you know. Neither are we. But St. Ann's is such a good school and the sisters set such a fine example."

"I served them a chicken dinner just after midnight as a special treat that night. It was such a lovely time and it was only a week ago..."

Mrs. Earnshaw said she knew when she returned from the movies on Tuesday night that something was sadly wrong.

"I was home shortly after 9 o'clock and I know something was wrong when Susan wasn't home. I met all the buses after that. All of them until we found out that Susan had been on an early bus."

Highway at 7:50 p.m. to start the long, never-to-be-completed two-mile walk home.

She was killed less than 500 yards from the neat white house that had been her home since coming to Canada a year ago from southern California.

"She came to stay with me so that she could attend St. Ann's," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Her mother and father couldn't bear to lose her, but wanted her to broaden her experience. This is such a terrible time for them, for all of us, now. We keep looking back and thinking how different things could have been."

"Felicity keeps saying 'if only I hadn't said that or done this. We all do. But it's too late now. She was such a beautiful child, such a wonderful girl.'"

Mrs. Earnshaw fell silent. The wind rustled the trees, the birds sang.

"Please tell people not to send flowers," she asked. "Tell them instead to send money to the Civil Rights Association. Susan would have wanted that."

"If only I hadn't been selfish and gone to the movies..."

ONE MILLION HOMELESS IN PAKISTAN CYCLONE

DACCA, Pakistan (UPI) — Authorities said today the massive cyclone which struck a 30,000-mile area of Pakistan early Wednesday left more than one million persons homeless and may have caused thousands of deaths.

The hardest hit area was the delta region of Barisal district, 150 miles south of Dacca. Eight other districts felt the full force of the more than 100-mile-an-hour winds for more than nine hours.

More than 100,000 dwellings collapsed and communications were disrupted over a wide area.

'All of Asia' China's Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said today the aim of China "is to erode and discredit" the ability of the U.S. to help to prevent Chinese domination over all Asia, but "in this they shall never succeed."

WIRE BRIEFS

Negro Church Bombed

OXFORD, Ala. (UPI) — A bomb explosion ripped through a one room Negro church near here today, smashing windows and ripping a gaping hole in the floor. No injuries were reported.

Blonde Bomber Guilty

NEW YORK (CP) — Michelle Duclos, 28-year-old Montreal blonde, pleaded guilty today in federal court to charges of illegally bringing from Canada 30 sticks of dynamite and three blasting caps which the government contends were to be used in a plot to blow up the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and Philadelphia's Liberty Bell.

Heiress Robbed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three thugs wearing handkerchief masks invaded the 14th floor Park Avenue duplex of department store heiress Carol Gimbel Lebowitz today and made off with between $50,000 and $80,000 in jewels.

Spy Jailed 30 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Glenn Thompson, former U.S. Air Force enlisted man who confessed to spying for Russia for six years, was sentenced today to 30 years in prison.

Marchers Back U.S.

TORONTO (UPI) — Some 1,000 demonstrators paraded outside the U.S. consulate Wednesday night in a show of support for American anti-Communist policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Johnson threw down the gauntlet to the Chinese in a television-radio address on American efforts in Viet Nam. The president prepared his talk for a meeting with editorial cartoonists in the East Room of the White House.

Repeating his offer to engage in unconditional discussions designed to end the Viet Nam war, Johnson said this would "clearly be in the interest of North Viet Nam."

But he said "Communist China apparently desires the war to continue whatever the cost to their allies." He went on:

"Their target is not merely South Viet Nam. It is Asia. Their objective is not the fulfillment of Vietnamese nationalism. It is to erode and discredit America's ability to prevent Chinese domination over all of Asia."

"In this they shall never succeed."

WAR HAS MANY FACES

Johnson began by saying "the war in Viet Nam has many faces"—the first being the face of armed conflict, terror and gunfire. In this connection, he said:

"The Communists in Viet Nam are slowly beginning to realize what they once scorned to believe: That we combine unlimited patience with unlimited resources in pursuit of an unwavering purpose."

The president summed up his determination by saying, "We will not abandon our commitment to South Viet Nam."

The second face of the war, he said, is the quest for a political solution.

"We know, as our adversaries should also know, there is no purely military solution in sight for either side," he said. "We are ready for unconditional discussions."

Local Man Suspected

By DESMOND BILL

RCMP suspect a local man is responsible for the sex-slaying of a 14-year-old girl in the Parson's Bridge area Tuesday night.

The nude body of Susan Freschi, daughter of wealthy American parents, was found in thick bush country behind the Six-Mile House beer parlor Wednesday afternoon.

Her body was found in one of the few clearings in the tangled undergrowth. The area is criss-crossed with trails, but the death spot is away from all of them. Police said the killer certainly had a good knowledge of the local area.

They said he may have been known to the girl.

She was found with her head lying in a pool of blood. Police said she apparently was bashed to death with a large rock weighing one and one-half pounds.

Her hands were tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of rope.

An autopsy was being held today to determine if the girl was sexually assaulted.

Police are checking all known sex-offenders in this area to discover their movements Tuesday night.

Killer May Have Stalked Susan

Susan may have been stalked by her killer from the time she got off a B.C. Hydro bus at the end of the terminus at Helmcken and Old Island Highway at 7:50 Tuesday night.

Police said she started off down the Old Island Highway to walk the two miles to where she lived with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, 2637 Chilco Road.

She was seen shortly after 8 p.m. at Thetis Lake Underpass walking alone carrying her school books.

Police say that from that point she could have taken two routes.

She could have walked down Atkins Road to Chilco or could have walked along the Old Island Highway to the Six Mile House and then taken a shortcut along a trail through wooded country to Chilco.

Police said that in the past she has taken both routes on her way home. Usually she was picked up at the bus terminus by her aunt but Tuesday night her aunt was going out to the movies and Susan telephoned Mrs. Earnshaw to say she would walk home.

The spot where her body was found is about 200 yards up a hill in thick bush away from the shortcut. The spot is about 10 yards from the top of a railway embankment and on the other side of the tracks there is a steep slope up to Atkins Road.

Mrs. Earnshaw arrived home shortly after 9 and discovered Susan had still not got home.

Susan attended St. Ann's Academy along with Felicity. The girls were good friends and their friendship was one of the reasons she came to live in Canada.

TRUCKS, RAIL CARS USED IN THEFT

Cobalt Stolen; Barrels Contain Sand

DELOOR, Ont. (CP) — Police and department of defence production officials are investigating the theft from a warehouse of $650,000 worth of refined cobalt.

The cobalt was owned by the federal government and stored under the contract by the Deloro Mining and Reduction Co. Ltd.

Industry Minister Dryry told the Commons Wednesday that the company was responsible for the cobalt, used in steel hardening and in production of certain paints.

It had been stockpiled since 1958. The theft was discovered more than a week ago, but word did not leak out until Monday.

The cobalt, in pelletized form was stored in 268 barrels, of which only 23 remained untouched, police said. Investigating officers believe heavy lifting equipment and transport trucks or rail transportation were used to haul the cobalt away from the site.

A CNR spur line between the smelter and Madoc, Ont., about five miles away, and a winding 1½-mile chipped-rock road leading to Highway 7 are the only probable transport routes, police said.

"You don't exactly throw those barrels around," said Insp. Floyd Shanks of the Madoc provincial police. "It took two of us just to tip a barrel, let alone move it anywhere."

Some of the drums weighed up to 2,000 pounds, he said. Four men with crowbars could not even roll one.

The cobalt had been removed from the barrels and replaced in most instances with sand or gravel.

The warehouse showed no signs of forced entry, police said. The remaining barrels were trucked out of the warehouse Tuesday to an undisclosed destination.

Deloro is 30 miles north of Belleville.

BLOOD-SOAKED SECT MARCH IN STREETS

KARACHI (UPI) — Ten thousand blood-soaked flagellants of the Shia Moslem sect marched through the streets of Karachi today to mark the slaying of the Caliph Imam Hussein in the Iraqi desert 13 centuries ago. The flagellation is intended to symbolize the agony and violence Hussein suffered when he was killed in 640.

The march ended a 10-day Moslem festival which celebrates the beginning of Muharram, the first month of the Moslem calendar.

'Church People' Rapped by U.S. Official

WASHINGTON (AP) — A religious-led "silent vigil" protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam broke up late Wednesday in a rain-drenched row between a spokesman for the group and Assistant Defence

Secretary Arthur Sylvester. The row was over whether the spokesman, Edward Snyder of the Friends committee, violated a confidence in giving a public report of a session between Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and nine leaders of the interfaith demonstration.

Sylvester accused Snyder of giving a "one-sided, slanted report" and said "only church people would do what you are doing."

This brought angry cries from about 200 of the demonstrators gathered in front of the Pentagon where they had stood in silence for six hours.

Snyder had said McNamara told the delegation the U.S. is "not preparing to attack Communist China unless they attack the United States."

He quoted McNamara as saying there would be little to gain in knocking out China's atomic complex because "they would be right back in five years."

He quoted McNamara as supporting the idea of economic aid to Southeast Asia and supporting the idea of negotiation.

VICTORIA, B.C. THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

I hadn't intended to mention my last week battle with a virus in this corner, preferring to be spartan about the whole dismal and depressing business. Since everyone else is boasting about his flu, however, I might as well get in step with the regiment.

And regiment it is. I don't know how many make an epidemic; but if all the sore throats, tight chests and stuffy noses were laid end to end, they would ring this afflicted city with a sniffling, coughing sneezing perimeter.

I'm not sure which particular set of vapors chose to grab me by nose and throat. But I visualize the bug as green, with a barbed tail, red eyes, horns, long yellow fangs, and a mad appetite for antibiotics.

In anything of this sort, the first step, of course, is to call the family doctor. After dawdling around with a couple of appendectomies, delivering his day's quota of babies and treating an emergency or two, ours arrived in his little red sport car.

"Aren't you overdue?" he asked as he removed his stethoscope from the dry ice and tested it for coldness against my short-ribs. "Usually you come moaning in toward the end of the Legislative session."

His drill completed, he prescribed $6.95 in pills and exploded out of our driveway with a twin-stick high compression "vroom."

When the prescription arrived, I took one white pill and one blue as prescribed, then set out to write next day's column.

No deal! After an hour of fuzzy-headed labor, it became plain that the quick brown fox wasn't going to make it over the lazy dog's back, and I crept off to bed.

If this particular noxious bug has already invaded your system, you'll know what I mean. If it hasn't, don't fool around once it takes hold. Go to bed and settle down to enjoy your misery!

As a matter of fact, this virus and I were fighting a return engagement. The first time it hit me, we were both in the army, and going to bed was the one thing I didn't propose to do.

This attitude was shaped by a few visits to stricken chums in the camp hospital, a grim little warren patrolled by anti-septic and steely-eyed nurses who took the view that Other Ranks had no right to go sick, considered the Lady with the Lamp a softy with no sense of discipline, and according to rumor, insisted that privates die at attention.

So I took myself off to the aid post, where a guy I knew painted my throat with dark-brown hellfire out of a bottle, applying it with a spatula the size of a cricket bat.

I don't know what that stuff in the bottle was, but it didn't fool around. One swabbing and you welcomed a route march or a brisk run up a mountain to get away from the taste of it.

No bug could withstand it, and half a dozen applications brought me to such a pitch of military briskness that I was promoted to acting lance corporal without pay.

In this present instance, the little white tablets and the big blue pills have done their work. Except for an overall languidness that sets in at the sight of spade or lawnmower, I'm right as ever, or will be after a good solid trout-fishing weekend.

Meanwhile, since the virus is still prowling our streets, I suggest, my friends, that you drink sparingly, eat lightly, avoid late nights and think good thoughts.

I don't mean this will prevent you from catching it, since you probably will. It just sounds like good general advice.

Return to Base

Three Esquimalt-based warships returned here late this morning after a two-and-a-half month cruise to the Far East. Hundreds of naval families were reunited—again today—after destroyer escorts HMCS Saskatchewan, HMCS Mackenzie and the ocean escort HMCS Beacon Hill tied up at HMC Dockyard.

The three-ship squadron, under command of Captain R. J. Pickford, visited ports in Midway, Guam, Hong Kong, Japan and Alaska.

"ON BEHALF OF ALL PEOPLE" John and Gail Simpson will take part in approaching peace demonstration at Comox despite risk of job, fine or jail. The young Victoria couple follow Quaker faith.

Resources Conference Boycotted by Quebec?

Second Minister Fails to Arrive For Meeting Here

By JOHN MIKA

A vital federal-province conference of resource ministers opened here this morning with an unspoken but worrisome question.

Has Quebec boycotted the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers?

It arose after the second of two Quebec ministers announced as coming failed to show up for the opening session.

In an interview before the closed meetings began National Resources Minister Arthur Laing denied there was any substance to reports that some provinces, led by Quebec, suspect the advisory council was formed as a federal manoeuvre aimed at gaining virtual behind-the-scenes control of all resource policy.

Quebec's controversial Natural Resources Minister Rene Levesque was reported as holding this opinion. He originally was scheduled to represent his province at the two-day session here but Wednesday it was announced a substitute would be sent.

DIDN'T TURN UP

The replacement, Quebec Lands and Forests Minister Joseph Cliche, did not turn up for the meeting this morning and it was not known if he would come at all.

Ironically, if there is an undeclared boycott, one of the several controversial discussion topics for the closed-door sessions is the principle of provincial "opting out" of national resource programs.

Only other absentee was Newfoundland Mines, Agriculture and Resources Minister W. J. Keough, but although Quebec and Newfoundland are feuding over the huge Hamilton Falls power project, he had been reported in failing health recently.

In one of the first items of business, it was learned the council dropped Mr. Levesque from the council's executive but this was described as routine in line with the policy of rotating directorships among the provinces.

Asked about reports of provincial suspicions, Mr. Laing said the council was formed as a result of the 1962 Resources for Tomorrow conference which brought wholehearted approval from the provinces.

AIDE IGNORED

An aide recalled the criticism by Mr. Levesque but Mr. Laing, ignoring the aside, said:

"I don't believe there is that feeling anywhere. We see no evidence of it and we're very happy with the co-operative spirit."

"We're trying, as most nations are, to properly organize resources on the basis that if you organize your parts you will create something that is greater than the sum of your parts."

Under questioning, Mr. Laing said there was no conflict between him and Premier W. A. C. Bennett on the question of exporting water—one of the topics of the meeting.

"I think in the future, water is going to be the big issue in Canada. It will be the greatest determinant of our future, particularly as it relates to a foreign country, it naturally will require a federal undertaking."

A conference secretariat official later told reporters that the initial session dealt with routine internal administrative matters.

PRINCIPAL CHARGES:

Teachers Pressured To Support U-Drive

Two department of education officials are pressuring teachers in Greater Victoria into contributing to the Three Universities Capital Fund Campaign, it was charged today.

S. J. Willis High School principal H. R. Dawson said the two teachers from most schools in Greater Victoria attended. "This is a subtle and insidious way of contravening the established policy of the GVTA," said Mr. Dawson. "It is being camouflaged in a variety of ways, but it is a real undermining of the association and teachers are taking the bait."

Selected teachers from each school staff were urged to a meeting by government officials and then instructed in the methods of contacting other school teachers. It is highly irregular.

"While I am opposed to the present methods of university financing, the complaints I voice now are not directly concerned with this."

Organizing people to extract money is a subtle form of government tyranny.

"I've got nothing against a university being publicly endowed. It has been done for thousands of years."

"But the situation does become bad when the government begins to organize charity to escape the responsibility of building universities by taxation."

Mr. Dawson said one of the rules of the teacher's association is that charity appeals be left up to the individual members. He said this was apparently being ignored by the government officials and was given tacit approval by the executive of the association itself.

Inspection Tonight

Air cadets of the Sidney Kinsmen No. 676 Squadron will parade for inspection tonight at Patricia Bay Airport.

NOT COMMUNIST OR CRACKPOT

Peace Walker Ready for Job-Loss or Jail

By PETE LOUDON

A young Victoria social worker and her husband will risk their jobs, fines or jail to demonstrate against nuclear weapons at Comox.

Denying that they are crackpots or Communists, John and Gail Simpson, both 24, plan to take part in a peace march—they call it a peace walk—from Victoria to Comox RCAF base, starting May 22.

The couple, married last November, are both "applicant visitors" in the Society of Friends (Quakers) here, but acting on their own.

She is a social worker for the provincial government. He is employed by Royal Trust Company.

Mrs. Simpson told the Times in an interview:

"I am prepared to go to jail."

"It is every person's own decision whether his concern (for humanity) supersedes his concern for monetary security."

Mrs. Simpson said she fully realizes that because she is a civil servant, her department might frown on her participation in any civil disobedience, that efforts might be made to dissuade her, or that her job might be forfeit.

She said it is only through such demonstrations that people who are dedicated to peace can be counted.

"It can be called bizarre, but then, the whole thing is bizarre," she stated.

She added, "This concern of ours is not for one social or political group. It is on behalf of all people."

Mrs. Simpson said the Comox march is known as Comox Project '65 to those who are taking part. She said it is mainly a Vancouver venture but five or six other Victorians are expected to take part.

Peace Groups

The core of the movement consists of 15 or 16 people drawn from various "peace groups" in Vancouver, who have been trained in passive resistance and civil disobedience.

Under the leadership of a 22-year-old student, Peter Light of that city, they will try to obtain entry to Comox RCAF station, at the risk of arrest, to obstruct the daily routine there.

It was reported Tuesday that since last weekend nuclear weapons now are stored there.

The marchers plan to proceed with their plan despite knowledge that trespass on Department of National Defence property carries heavy penalty.

The Criminal Code stipulates a maximum fine of $1,000 or a maximum 12 months prison, or both where access or egress is blocked.

The organizing group is a loosely formed committee drawn from various organizations connected with Peace House, their Point Grey headquarters, in Vancouver.

Lighthouse

The $175-a-month rented property was obtained largely through efforts of Mr. Light. Recently he has provided training for demonstrators there. Several live on the premises.

Mrs. Simpson says Mr. Light attended both UBC and McGill but didn't complete his course in Montreal because of his involvement in a 1963 peace march from Quebec to Guantanamo, Cuba. Several members of the march were jailed in Georgia.

He went to Georgia and also was jailed. On his release he took part in a peace demonstration at La Macaza air force base in Quebec last fall. He has since been involved in several demonstrations in Vancouver concerning the war in Viet Nam and the U.S. consulate.

Pacifist First

"He is a pacifist first and secondly a civil rights worker," said Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. Simpson said financing for Project '65 is dependent on volunteer subscriptions. From its start May 22 until June 6 the cost is expected to be $1,200.

"But they hope to remain at Comox all summer if they can raise the money." All those taking part have been asked to provide sleeping bags. Mr. Light is at Comox now seeking a rented headquarters or a camping area for the campaigners. He expects about 200 people to take part.

Attend Climax

The Victoria delegation is expected to drive back and forth to night meetings while the march is under way and to attend the climax of the event, the attempt to enter the base June 2.

Mrs. Simpson said the campaigners will try to put on a good appearance to improve their "image" in the public eye.

"Most of them are young and not always the best dressers. But they are trying to enforce rules for dress and appearance."

She said only those persons trained in civil disobedience methods will be allowed to take part in the attempted entry of the Comox base, or a resultant sit-in.

Stand Vigil

She added, "We don't want Comox people to feel we are against them or their jobs." Most demonstrators will merely stand vigil at the gates of the base.

How will the demonstrators face up to threat of jail or fine?

"In every peace demonstration it is the individual's decision when the time comes, that decides his action."

"I'll take part in the civil disobedience if I am permitted," she said.

"I'll take part even though it may have some effect on my job."

She said the demonstrators will approach the gate and ask "Will you open?"

"They probably will say no. We will ask again and they will refuse again. Then the spokesman says 'I am going to enter.'"

"The intent is to enter and then attempt to obstruct day-to-day activities."

Try to Enter

"An attempt will be made to enter. If we get in we expect either to be taken into custody or removed outside the gate."

"That is when the sit-in usually starts. We sit by the gate and refuse to let anyone enter unless or until we are taken into custody."

Mrs. Simpson said she took part in recent demonstrations outside the U.S. consulate and at Victory Square in Vancouver.

"In that case we kept walking and there was nothing they could do."

"At Comox, after the civil disobedience attempt there will be a sit-in."

"The people taking part are mostly students or ex-students. Occasionally there are dear old people struggling along on canes."

"We seem to get either the very young or the very old, but very few middle-aged people."

"The ones who join us are probably those who have the least to lose."

Mrs. Simpson was born in Victoria but went to Vancouver as a child and obtained her BA and MSW there. Her husband was born in England, lived in South America, but came to Victoria at an early age.

He obtained his BA at University of B.C. in 1962 studying linguistics. He later attended Reed University and University of Alberta, working toward his master's degree.

He became interested in the Society of Friends after being married in their church. The couple lives at 320 Bessborough.

Who Closed The Door To Marchers?

Mystery Order Won't Stop Speechmakers

Who lowered the boom on use of St. John Ambulance hall here by peace marcher Peter Light?

The Pandora Avenue hall had been rented to the Humanist Fellowship who are sponsoring an appearance here by Mr. Light Friday.

Then suddenly, without explanation, the rental was cancelled.

Was it a case of attempting to squelch Mr. Light St. John officials here were asked.

Executive members here all claimed to know nothing about the refusal.

Chairman George A. Barr was out of town when the refusal was issued. Vice-chairman Col. J. W. D. Symons said he knew nothing of the cancellation, but "I agree the use of the hall might stir up controversy."

FROM VANCOUVER

House committee chairman Edward Thomas suggested the order might have come from the provincial executive at its Vancouver headquarters.

"I am under instructions," he said, "Locally we can't do or say anything. We get instructions and can't disobey them."

Contacted at Vancouver, provincial secretary Basil K. Wallace, however, said he knew nothing about the situation. He said he would ask the provincial director, J. W. Cronk.

Meantime, Humanist chairman in Victoria, R. F. Jeffs said the meeting will go ahead at 8 p.m. Friday as scheduled, but at Holyrood House.

He said he doesn't favor Mr. Light's plan for civil disobedience, a sit-in at the RCAF station gates after a peace walk from Victoria. But Mr. Light's speech here is to recount his experiences with the civil rights movement in the southern U.S.

REGRETTABLE

And Mr. Jeffs regrets that this should be subject to attempted censorship.

The former RCAF wing commander, former chamber of commerce secretary and former air attaché to several European stations of the Canadian diplomatic corps is now a Saanich social worker.

He states, "We as humanists, do not advocate violence or even peace marches. But we need freedom for individual rebellion in order to express our sense of values within a democracy."

He said the peace demonstrators are in the Hyde Park Corner tradition.

"A young educated man who has dedicated himself to the cause of peace and freedom... should be heard in his own province. He may have a message for all of us."

Jaycees Name New Officers

Other Jaycees elected to office Wednesday night are Terry Daniels, Garry Allan and Bert Belfie, vice-presidents; Barry Squirrel, secretary; Don Mathison, exhibition director; Don Ballard, Dave Hardy, Jim Harris, Jim Leamy, Don Moss, Ron Mothershead, Terry Nex, George Robbins and Vic Tubman, directors.

Woman 'Only Fair' After Car Accident

A city woman today was reported in only fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital following a traffic accident Sunday at Bay and Rose Streets.

She is Mary Louise Kermode, 24, of 849 Princess. Also injured in the mishap was her 12-week-old son, Michael, but he is reported in good condition.

Topics of the Day

An accident in the Crystal Garden last month has resulted in a claim.

Barbara Bill, a nursing student at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was cut on the head when a window frame fell on a table in the Flamingo Room.

The cut bled profusely and a stained her dress permanently.

She is asking that the city replace the dress, valued at $19.95 and also pay a cleaning bill for $1.65.

The claim will be referred to the city's claims agent.

Green algae has been cleared from Langford Lake by nature but the situation is under continuing observation, metro health board's sanitation chief, Elmer S. Gropp, reported Wednesday.

The algae has curtailed recreational activities on the lake and was blamed by residents for the deaths of several dogs.

HMCS Grise, the RCN's west coast submarine, will be in Portland, Ore., June 9-13 for the city's annual rose festival.

The sub carries nine officers and 80 men and is under the command of Lieut.-Cmdr. John Rodocanachi.

A city man reported to police he lost $400 in tools from his locked garage between Tuesday morning and late Wednesday afternoon.

Edward N. Smith found a padlock was broken to gain entry to a garage to the rear of 2615 Blanshard St.

Stolen were auto-body tools, seat belts and other tools.

A U.S. coast guard cutter and a USN tug will visit B.C. ports near the end of the month.

USS Tatnuck, a cutter with a complement of four officers and 29 men will visit Nanaimo May 24 for Empire Day ceremonies.

USS Cahokia, a large tug with a crew of four officers and 34 men, will visit Vancouver May 26-28.

Mrs. Parrott and her younger son, Brock, join members of the Women's Committee to the Greater Victoria Art Gallery on the upper patio which leads from the spacious living room. Mrs. Charles Gregory, at right, is convener of this year's house tour. Also on the committee is Mrs. Ray Hadfield.

The Turgoo Terrace home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lee not only has a wonderful setting, it also has friendly neighbors, such as the sprightly pup that greeted committee members, Mrs. E. L. Jones, left, and Mrs. R. L. Horne when they made a pre-tour call. (Photos by Bill Halkett.)

THREE HOMES TO BE SEEN

Island Scenery Sets Backdrop for Tour

By PAT DUFOUR

Officially it's a house tour, but Victorians and tourists who "take in" the annual affair, arranged by the Women's Committee to the Greater Victoria Art Gallery for Saturday, May 15, will be treated to an afternoon of some of the area's most attractive scenery.

Taking a pre-tour run this week, I couldn't help but feel that the committee had summer days and warm July evenings on their minds when they chose this year's three houses... each is designed and built for outdoor living.

First on my list was "Bradley Dyne," home of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Parrott at 9620 Ardmore Drive. (Those who have already bought their tickets should note that it's listed wrongly as $260.)

This two-storey home overlooking Saanich Inlet is built on three acres bought 50 years ago by Mrs. Parrott's parents from the late Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Dyne. It has 350 feet of waterfront, attractively flanked by statuesque dogwood trees.

OUTDOOR BARBECUE

My first impulse was to dash to the store to buy some steaks with which to try the outdoor barbecue which centres a spacious sun patio on the ground level.

These were a family project and Mrs. Parrott says, "They were well worth every brick we laid."

Truly a family home, perfect for the every-changing needs of the three younger Parrotts, Brock, four; Brian, 10 and 16-year-old Sherry, the house was an adaptation of plans which Mr. and Mrs. Parrott discovered in a Better Homes and Gardens Magazine. The lower floor has a rumpus room which all parents of teen-aged children can appreciate. Its double fireplace is planned for barbecue cooking, the glass doors seem to bring the outdoors inside and the roller piano is an irresistible temptation at youthful parties.

HINT OF OLD WORLD

The outside of the house blends with its surroundings, being of rough cedar, painted a soft green. Woods also add to the interior. The kitchen's cabinets are of Japanese sen, clothes closets hint of the "old world," being of wooden slats and beamed ceilings add an extra touch of warmth.

A huge granite fireplace dominates the 32-foot living room. Four bedrooms and three bathrooms ensure comfortable, uncrowded family living.

Another home included in the tour also relies on Saanich Inlet for most of its scenic setting although a well-kept farm and rolling fields add their own backdrop. It's the spacious home of Mrs. W. C. Woodward, widow of the former Lieutenant-governor, and is to be seen at 7764 West Saanich Road.

DI CASTRI DESIGN

Third on the list is the newly built home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lee. This house is the creation of local architect, John A. Di Castri, and contains many of the breathtakingly beautiful innovations that have made Di Castri buildings some of our city's most attractive assets.

Here again, seascapes add to the decor. The home, situated at 8012 Turgoo Terrace, has windows that look out over the water to James Island and Sidney Spit.

A special feature of the house is an open stairwell which runs through both of the house's levels, culminating in a rock garden on the lower floor.

DREAM 'ISLAND'

The kitchen is the epitome of any woman's dreams, having a central "island," with doors opening to a work area, dish storage, canned goods storage and an up-to-date housewife's office.

The lower level is built with house guests in mind, with its own self-contained kitchen and living room.

All three homes are fine examples of the individuality that has given western architecture a top position on Canada's architectural scene.

The tour begins at 2 p.m. and ends at 5 p.m. Buses will leave the gallery at 1:30 p.m. Women are asked not to wear spike heels. No children under 14 will be allowed on the tour.

Of Personal Interest

Off to Portland

Several members of the Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild will travel to Portland to attend the second Pacific Northwest Weavers' Conference to be held in the Oregon city from May 21 to May 23. Planning to attend are Mrs. H. L. Gonnason, Mrs. B. C. Ryan, Mrs. H. C. Hartshorne, Mrs. O. L. Stanton, Mrs. S. Pickles, Mrs. G. L. Robertson, Mrs. W. C. Winkel and Mrs. George Anstey.

Wed In Montreal

Of interest in Victoria is the recent marriage in St. James' United Church, Montreal, of Mrs. Beatrice Caulfield, Montreal, and Mr. Terry Patrick Jones, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones of Colville Road, Victoria. The groom attended Esquimalt High School and Victoria High School. The newlyweds are now making their home at 4270 Sir George Simpson, Lachine, Que.

Visit Orient

Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bassett returned to Victoria on Tuesday after a six-week visit to Japan. The couple left here in late March aboard the P and O liner Ss. Oronsay. Dr. Bassett attended a meeting of the Pan Pacific Medical Association in Tokyo. Then, Dr. and Mrs. Bassett toured Japan.

Confederation '67 Means Another Upsurge As It Did 100 Years Ago for Canada

If Canadians have the same sort of spirit, determination and sense of rationalization in 1967 as their forefathers had on entering Confederation in 1867, Canada will be able to look forward to another great upsurge in its next 100 years.

This was stated by Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, speaking at the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Ireland emphasized the tremendous parallel in 1965 to that which existed 100 years ago so far as the question of a true united Canada was concerned. "The state of population, economics and legislation is very different today, but the basis of uniting the provinces in goodwill has not changed," he said.

B.C.'s DIFFICULTIES

In outlining the situation British Columbia was in, prior to entering Confederation, Mr. Ireland explained, "Naturally it was one of difficulty. First of all, British Columbia was still administered by the Crown in the form of colonies. Then there was the problem of setting up a responsible government. This was almost impossible as there was no one experienced in legislation."

The speaker gave Sir James Douglas as an example. "Here was a man who left his native Scotland at the age of 15, and since that time had been in a colony receiving his orders from Britain. How then, could he be expected to establish a responsible government in British Columbia?"

Mr. Ireland said that it would have been little short of tragic if British Columbia had entered Confederation in 1867.

JOINED IN 1871

"We were not prepared because of the lack of experience. Finally, in 1871, with Sir Richard McBride, we entered in alliance with the other provinces."

There did seem to be insurmountable problems to this joining. "First of all," said the speaker, "there was the lack of communication, as there was no link by road or rail to the rest of Canada."

The real difficulty was for the people (especially on Vancouver Island which had been a Crown colony for so long) to accept the new status of being Canadians after having been British. "But," quoted Mr. Ireland, "Dr. Helmcken said in a speech in the legislature—'England has given us nothing but a flag, maybe Canada can give us more.' The speaker quipped, 'It's taken Canada a long time, but we've got the flag!'"

Mr. Ireland was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Forbes, president, and thanked by Mrs. Charles Smith.

Forbes, president; Mrs. H. H. Youson, first vice-president; Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell, second; Mrs. R. T. Wallace, third; Miss Jessie M. Gordon, honorary secretary; Mrs. John H. Brown, honorary treasurer; Mrs. Frank Mack, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Alfred B. Young, historian.

Committee members include Mrs. H. J. Damasko, Mrs. T. C. Evans, Mrs. Dal MacLeod, Mrs. W. Davenport, Mrs. T. C. Hamilton, Mrs. C. L. Smith and Mrs. A. S. Stringer.

A corsage was presented to Miss Mary Ashworth, pianist, by Miss Forbes.

WARNING BY LBJ

'All of Asia'
China's Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today the aim of China "is to erode and discredit" the ability of the U.S. to help to prevent Chinese domination over all Asia, but "in this they shall never succeed."

Johnson threw down the gauntlet to the Chinese in a television-radio address on American efforts in Viet Nam. The president prepared his talk for a meeting with editorial cartoonists in the East Room of the White House.

Repeating his offer to engage in unconditional discussions designed to end the Viet Nam war, Johnson said this would "clearly be in the interest of North Viet Nam."

But he said "Communist China apparently desires the war to continue whatever the cost to their allies." He went on:

"Their target is not merely South Viet Nam. It is Asia. Their objective is not the fulfillment of Vietnamese nationalism. It is to erode and discredit America's ability to prevent Chinese domination over all of Asia."

"In this they shall never succeed."

Johnson began by saying "the war in Viet Nam has many faces"—the first being the face of armed conflict, terror and gunfire. In this connection, he said:

"The Communists in Viet Nam are slowly beginning to realize what they once scorned to believe: That we combine unlimited patience with unlimited resources in pursuit of an unwavering purpose."

The president summed up his determination by saying, "We will not abandon our commitment to South Viet Nam."

The second face of the war, he said, is the quest for a political solution.

"We know, as our adversaries should also know, there is no purely military solution in sight for either side," he said. "We are ready for unconditional discussions."

Dominican Conflict
Flares Up

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Two U.S. soldiers were killed today in a skirmish deep within rebel territory and the Dominican conflict appeared to be heating up again.

Reuters news agency said a radio station held by the rebels was strafed by a military plane, injuring one unidentified reporter. The report also said the rebels fired on a baseball stadium where opposing military forces have their transportation headquarters.

The rebel regime warned an attack would be opened on the Americans unless they left a power plant they occupied three days ago. The rebels said it violated the ceasefire.

A three-man U.S. patrol, apparently lost in the maze of streets, was caught by rebel fire. One was killed outright. The other was wounded and died shortly thereafter. The third American escaped.

'Her Mother Was Told Car Killed Susan'

By JIM HUME

Sometime this week somebody has to tell Susan Freschi's mother how her daughter died. Locked in grief in a shaded room at the home of her sister, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, Mrs. R. J. Freschi thinks Susan was killed by a car.

"We can't tell her how Susan died," Mrs. Earnshaw said this morning, tears staining her careworn face. "She loved Susan so much her heart is breaking. Whatever we do we must keep from her the horrible way she died."

Quietly spoken, Mrs. Earnshaw is fighting a strong feeling of guilt that Susan's murder on Tuesday evening was her fault.

"For the first time in many, many months I went to town to see a movie. I shouldn't have gone, you know. I should have met Susan the way I always did when she took her riding lessons."

Sunlight dappled the green lawn beneath a weeping willow tree and the breeze rippled the water of a small ornamental pool in front of the Earnshaw home.

Mrs. Earnshaw looked across to the woods where her niece's body was found Wednesday.

"I know it's silly, but I blame myself. I wanted to see 'Seance on a Wet Afternoon,' so when Susan telephoned a little after 6 to tell me she would be late. I told her I was going to the show and to go ahead and walk home."

Susan could have caught an earlier bus, but Tuesday evening volunteered to stay behind and clean the stables at the Victoria Riding Academy.

"She was like that," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Always helpful; always willing and so sensitive to the problems of other people. She was only 14 but, along with my daughter Felicity, she took a great interest in the civil rights struggle in the United States. They knew every one of Pete Seeger's songs by heart. She used to sing 'We Shall Overcome.'"

Felicity was 15 a week ago. We had a few girls from St. Ann's Academy out and they slept outside here on the lawn. It was a wonderful time and Susan enjoyed herself so much that day.

"She wasn't a Catholic, you know. Neither are we. But St. Ann's is such a good school and the sisters set such a fine example."

"I served them a chicken dinner just after midnight as a special treat that night. It was such a lovely time and it was only a week ago ..."

Mrs. Earnshaw said she knew when she returned from the movies on Tuesday night that something was sadly wrong.

"I was home shortly after 9 o'clock and I know something was wrong when Susan wasn't home. I met all the buses after that. All of them until we found out that Susan had been on an early bus."

Highway at 7:50 p.m. to start the long, never-to-be-completed two-mile walk home.

She was killed less than 500 yards from the neat white house that had been her home since coming to Canada a year ago from southern California.

"She came to stay with me so that she could attend St. Ann's," Mrs. Earnshaw said. "Her mother and father couldn't bear to lose her, but wanted her to broaden her experience. This is such a terrible time for them, for all of us, now. We keep looking back and thinking how different things could have been."

"Felicity keeps saying 'If only I hadn't said that or done this.' We all do. But it's too late now. She was such a beautiful child, such a wonderful girl."

Mrs. Earnshaw fell silent. The wind rustled the trees, the birds sang.

"Please tell people not to send flowers," she asked. "Tell them instead to send money to the Civil Rights Association. Susan would have wanted that."

"If only I hadn't been selfish and gone to the movies ..."

The gravel sounds loud underfoot as you walk back down the well-kept garden path to the car.

Killer Must Know Area

A post mortem examination on the body of murder-victim Susan Freschi showed the girl died from a fractured skull, RCMP announced this afternoon.

Reports were still awaited on tests taken regarding sexual attack, the police said. There were indications of perversion in the attack.

No arrests had been made 26 hours after discovery of the body.

Reports that a man had been taken into custody were misleading. A man was arrested on a warrant sworn out several days ago in connection with another case of assault, and he was under routine examination. But police said he had not been linked with the Freschi murder.

By DESMOND BILL

RCMP suspect a local man must be responsible for the sex-slaying of a 14-year-old girl in the Parson's Bridge area Tuesday night because of the circumstances under which she was killed.

The nude body of Susan Freschi, daughter of wealthy American parents, was found in thick bush country behind the Six-Mile House beer parlor Wednesday afternoon.

Her body was found in one of the few clearings in the tangled undergrowth. The area is criss-crossed with trails, but the death spot is away from all of them. Police said the killer certainly had a good knowledge of the local area.

They said he may have been known to the girl.

She was found with her head lying in a pool of blood. Police said she apparently was bashed to death with a large rock weighing one and one-half pounds.

Her hands were tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of rope.

An autopsy was being held today to determine if the girl was sexually assaulted.

Police are checking all known sex-offenders in this area to discover their movements Tuesday night.

Killer May Have Stalked Susan

Susan may have been stalked by her killer from the time she got off a B.C. Hydro bus at the end of the terminus at Helmcken and Old Island Highway at 7:50 Tuesday night.

Police said she started off down the Old Island Highway to walk the two miles to where she lived with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, 2637 Chilco Road.

She was seen shortly after 8 p.m. at Thetis Lake Underpass walking alone carrying her school books.

Police say that from that point she could have taken two routes.

She could have walked down Atkins Road to Chilco or could have walked along the Old Island Highway to the Six Mile House and then taken a shortcut along a trail through wooded country to Chilco.

Police said that in the past she has taken both routes on her way home. Usually she was picked up at the bus terminus by her aunt but Tuesday night her aunt was going out to the movies and Susan telephoned Mrs. Earnshaw to say she would walk home.

The spot where her body was found is about 200 yards up a hill in thick bush away from the shortcut. The spot is about 10 yards from the top of a railway embankment and on the other side of the tracks there is a steep slope up to Atkins Road.

Mrs. Earnshaw arrived home shortly after 9 and discovered Susan had still not got home.

She went to the bus stop and waited for each bus as it arrived looking for the girl.

She contacted Colwood RCMP near midnight. Police made several checks overnight and at 6 Wednesday morning began to search for Susan.

An RCMP tracking dog from Nanaimo was brought in to search and local people joined in to help. Police said the body was found by a "young lad" but said they did not have his name.

Police said the best clue they have in the case is the rope used to tie Susan's hands. They said it is an "ordinary rope" such as is used for tying up a small boat.

The murder weapon was found by the tracking dog. It is a dirty blood-smeared rock about two times the size of a man's clenched fist.

Susan's underclothes and her outer garments were found a few feet from her body. They were not torn, police said.

Susan was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Freschi of La Calada, a suburb of Glendale outside Los Angeles. She came to live with her aunt and her cousin, Felicity Earnshaw, last fall.

Susan attended St. Ann's Academy along with Felicity Earnshaw, her cousin. The girls were good friends and their friendship was one of the reasons she came to live in Canada.

The dead girl was popular at St. Ann's.
